[Lord Cork's son writes here, "OB. An agreement between my father and Mr. Alexander Tousse touching a hundred and twenty acres in Curry-been and the half ploughland of Mogelly and in Island."—G.]

13. This daie according thadvice & agreement between me, and thearle of castlehaven at dublin the 9 of this moneth, before the L. viscount costelloe and others, I laborred as he advized me my comissioners Sir John dongan and Sir Nichas white, to travaile hence to Maddanstown to receav the cognezance of the Cowntess of Castlehavens ffyne of the Mannor of Stalbridg, and sent my servant, Tho. Badnedg, with my lettres to his Lo^p to procure and see the perfection therof, as thearle by his covenant had vndertaken. But her La^p would not acknowledge it without a hundreth peeces before hand, soe as my commissioners were enforced (this thirde tyme) to return without having it don, and Badnedg without any answer of my lettres.

14. I delivered my lettres to M^r perckins, and in them others from me to M^r Marcombes, for him and my sons to tarry the heat of the somer at Geneva, and not to begin their travailes into Italy till Michas, and gave order now to M^r perckins to send them by exchange the 400^{li}, being the Remayn of the 600^{li} I made over to him for them, wherof 300^{li} to be paid them in Geneva on Michas day next, as part of the 1000^{li}, for their maintenance abroad from m̄ 1637, vntill Michas, 1638; which 300^{li} is to be made vpp 700^{li} more, for that year, over and above the 200^{li} that M^r parkins made over vnto them, of the 600^{li} he received from them, on Symon gibbons bill of exchange, per Gilbert the purcevant.

17. I this day paid M^r John Heys 80^{li} ster : in discharge of a bond of 160^{li} ster: that thearle of Barrymore made to John Stanley, thelder, merchant, deceased, and took vp his Lo^{ps} bond canceld, with M^r Heyes his acquittance, who received the money by order of John Stanleis widdoe.

17. This daie I sent in a boxe sealed vp, my ffyne of the mannor of Stalbridge in dorsetshier, acknowledged onely by thearle of castlehaven, with my lettres to Thomas Cross, my steward there, by M^r John clavell, the phisicall lawyer; and in a packett to Tho. cross, the coppie of other lettres of myne written to the said Earle to have his Lady, as he hathe covenanted, to Joyn with him in the ffyne, with thorigenall lettres to his Lo^p in answer of myne, and his Lo^{ps} lettres with his own hand written to M^r ffrances Ancill to paie the Lo. Cottington a thowsand pounds ster:, and therwith to free all his estate from my Lo. Cottington, wherby M^r Hipposly and M^r Manning may be at liberty to Joine in my assurances.

17. Moylen Canty was allowed by M^r walley vij^{li} for the chardge of the comissioners and witnesses in the Sute between owen m^c n^e murgh carty & Teag m^c fflorence Leary land[s] in Sleight Teag o Mahons [country].

17. This daie my Nephue, Roger power, Roger carew, Hugh croker, of Ballyancker, Robert downing, Henry Rogers, Tho. pomfrett, and John ffoster, brought me to dublin from John walley 5560^{li} 3^s ster:, towards the payment of my great debt to his Ma^{ty}, wherof I am, at or before the 24th of this moneth, to paie at the receipt of the excheqr 5000^{li}, as my second payment of the 15000 which my Lo. deputie ordered me to paie his mat^y for the Rents & proffits of the colledg of yoghall; and 1200^{li} for my third and 4th payment of my 6 subsidies. And M^r walley hath alsoe directed the said Hugh Croker to pay me other 290^{li} for iron which he was suertie to me for his brother Xtofer croker, (which was paid W^m Barber 20 Junij, 1637.) And M^r walley gave Tho. pomfret 5^{li} to bear their chardges to Dublin, & lxx^s to defraie their chardges back from Dublin to Lismoor.

19. The meeting between the Lords Bishops of Derry, waterford, [&] the M^r of wardes to Compownd our differences was this daie in debate at my howse, but not concluded.

19. Leefftenant Richard Rutledge gaue me an ambling gray nag, for which I haue promised him a lardger gelding of my own breed, and brought me his own Easter Rents and moste of my other Connaght Rents.

20. Remember to know [of] M^r Attorney ffysher the reason whie he took an estate of Hughe Roe o Higgen of the two quarters of Rathtoomie, within sixe myles of Bealick, in the County of Mayoe, being part of the lands that my cozen, Sir George Boyle, conveighed to me and my heires for ever, reserving his Ladies lyffe therin.

21. This daie M^r John Butler of cloghbride did give me his consent that I should make Marmaduke shaste of Clonmell my tennant of the Rectories of Raronan and Kilgraunt, whervppon he promised me to surrender vnto me his lease I made him therof, when we should be in the countrey. And then I wrott to Marmaduke to enter vppon the possession of those Rectories, and that I would make him a lease of them at 70^{li} per annum de claro.

23. I cleered all accompts with M^r Henry warren, and signed three acquittances which he brought me, all written by himself, for one yeare and a halfes Rent ended at and for our Lady day, 1637; owt of which Rents I abated him xxij^{li} x^s ster: for his chardges on the sute for the warde of Tubber, which he recovered from M^r [name illegible].

24. This day the deputie cheef Remembrancer of his Ma^{ty}s court of Excheqr being M^r W^m Sandes, brought me an order signed by the Lo. cheef Barron for cancelling my Recognizance, which by the Lo. deputies order I had entred into before the L. cheef Barron in ten Thowsand pownds ster : for the payment of ffive thowsand pownds ster : on the 24th daie of June laste, 1637, which 500^{li} I having paid to Nicholas Loftus, esqr., deputie generall Receavor to his Ma^{ty}s, the [blank] day of this moneth, and producing the vicethreasurs acquittance for the same, I had an order in court for cancelling my said Recognizance; which was don in court accordinglie, and with the coppie of thorder vnder the deputie Remembrancers hand sent me and my cancelled Recognizance to shew me, for my Satisfaction; whervvpon I gaue M^r W^m Sandes 40^s for his fees.

24 ~~20~~. This day M^r walley by my order supplied M^r Redmond Roche with 700^{li}; two hundred wherof was for his wives estate for life in M^r wisemans howse in Bandon, thother 500^{li} to pay Henry Henley for Ballyhendon.

26. The Lo. Bicshop of Lismoor and waterford, and my self, after his peticons to the Lo. deputie and councell for Lismoor, Kilbree, Bewly, Kilmolashe, Kilclogher, and Ardmoo, and the ffowrth fishe of Awmore, and that all his peticons were by me Legallie answered, vppon the B^{ps} motion to referr all our tytles and differences to the Lo. Bicshop of Londonderry, and Sir W^m parsons, M^r of the wardes, I consented to submitt all his demaunds to those two persons, both of them being soe by him no[min]ated. And the Lo. deputies consent, and approbacōn being first had, before I would yeald to anie treatie to be entred into, by the said Referrees. And they knowing the Lo. deputies willingnes to haue the tytles and demaunds of the Bicshop to be reconciled by them, had severall meetings, and the view and examynacon of all my deeds, leases, pattents and evidences. And this day at my house in Dublin in the presence and consents of bothe of vs grew to a full conclusion.

27 ~~20 20~~. This daie I was sent for to the castle of Dublin to appeer before the Lo. deputy to declyne as in presenti, where accordingly my self, and my ffeoffees of truste, viz. 26 ~~29~~. The differences between the Lo. Deputy and chancel[lor] of Ireland having taken vp formerly two daies in de[bate] before his Ma^{ty} and the Lords at the councill ta[ble] was this day brought to a thirde heering, wher[of his] Ma^{ty} was pleased (vppon the Inunction isued to [torn] thadminstracon of doctor Medcalfes goods [torn] his children, and vppon the Lo. chancellor his de[livery] of the Lordes of the pale their negative voyces [at] the contribucon for the countrey to defray the [pay] of the army) to comaund me to deliver my kno[wledge] which I trulie related. And after full heering th[e] chancellor was put from thoffice of chancellor.

28 ~~20~~. This day James ffitz Redmond Barry, of Rathcor-myc[k als] mack Addam, did with the consent of thearle of Bar[rymore] and in his presence, and in the presence of Arthure Jones, capten vscher, and other witnesses, seale and deliver vnto me to the vse of my self and my son Robert Boyle, and his he[ires] assignes for ever, his graunt of the advowson of Rath-c[ormyck]. Nota, that this day my two yongest sons arrived at Geneva, having spent 140^{li}. 9^s in their travel from London thither.

2. Lent thearle of Barrymore 50^{li}, and to my son dongarvan other 20^{li}, and I bestowed on him in ready money other C.^{li} towards the chardge of the christening of his frste son, where the Kings Ma^{ty}, the Lo. marquess Hamylton, and the Cowntess of Salisburie, haue promised to be present, and to give him a Xtian name.

12. Which the 12 of this moneth they did, in the chapple of Sir Thomas staffords hows in the Savoy, wherin I now dwell: The queens Ma^{ty}, the Cowntesses of Denbigh, Holland, Carnarvan, and the Ladies of the Cowrt being present at the bancquett; and the childe is honored with the Kings name of charles, whom I beseech god to bless.

7. I sent by W^m chettle to my son Kynalmeaky one C.^{li} ster: to provide him apparrell fytting for his marriadg to the Ladie Elizabeth ffeeldinge, daughter to the Earle of denbighe, and lent him my son ffrancks wedding shoes: which were delivered him the 16 of this moneth.

11. M^r Bancks paid W^m Barber the firste 300^{li}, being part of the thowsand pownd which I chardged on M^r walley to be paid vnto M^r Hayman of yoghall, son to M^r Hayman of Mynhead, who owes me other 700^{li}.

14. The Lo. Deale, and M^r James Maxfeeld of his Ma^{ts} bed chamber, tendred vnto me thearle of Annandales his son and heire for a husband to my daughter Mary after she could not be perswaded to marry M^r James Hamylton, son and heir to the Lo. viscount of Clandebwy. But in regard I was engaged by treaty with the Lo. Moor I did not accept therof.

20 ~~20~~. I did this day paie vnto James Earle of castlehaven the some of 678^{li}, which with other somes heerto[fo]re paid his Lo^p, and by me disbursed for sewing owt my laste ffyne in Michas tearm preceding acknowledged by his Lo^p and his countess, dothe make all my payments for the purchase of Stalbridge to be 4015^{li} ster. ∴ And for the payment of the laste thowsand pownds in remayn I haue this day given him my single bill to pay it him the 13 of ffeb^r next. And that don, his Lo^p is fully satisfied.

21. I presented my Lo. privie Seale with a Ronlett of vscebaugh.

21. W^m Barber this day paid M^r James Barry of Rathcor-mycke vij^{li}. ix^s. iij^d which makes vp the former severall moneis I haue lent him in London to be xxxj^{li} for which, and cxxij^{li} he hath mortgadged vnto me a ploughland neer Castle Lyons called Ballynealy.

December 1639.

23. Thearle of salisburie sent me a brace of ffatt does againste Xtmas: Reward 20^s.

20 26 20 20. My second son Sir Lewis Boyle, Knight, Barron of Bandonbridge, Lo. viscount Boyle of Kynalmeaky, was married in the Kings chapple in his court of whitehall, to the Ladie Elizabeth ffeelding, one of the Ladies of the queens Ma^{ties} privie chamber, and daughter to thearle of Denbigh. And the Kinge was pleased to honor their marriadge with his own presence, and to give the Ladie to my son to be his wife; at which nuptiall there was much Revelling, dawncing and ffeasting, and the King and queen brought the Bryde to her bedchamber in Court; where her ma^{ty}, and all the Ladies of honor did help to vndress her, and put her into her bed, & when her husband was bedded with her, the King and queen kissed, and rekissed her, and blessed them bothe, and soe did I; And it was, is, and ever shalbe my praier to my god, to bless, guyde, and preserv them with health & longe lyffe, and to make them ffrutefull in vertuous children, and in good worcks, to his glorye. Amen. Amen.

The queens Ma^{ty} presented the Bryde with a ritch necklace of pearle, vallued 1500^{li}, which the Kings Ma^{ty} put about her neck; but Kynalmeaky was not in good order for a bryde-groome.

31. My Lo. deputie promised me before he departed from Court that he would procure his Ma^{ty}s warrant for passing vnto me and my heires the ffee of the colledge and lands of yoghall according [to] the agreement and promise he made vnto me, when I consented to resign it to his Ma^{ty} and to pay the King fifteen thowsand pownds ster: for the issues and mean profits therof, from the first purchase I made therof from Sir walter Raleigh, till the tyme of my surrender to his Ma^{ty}: And he alsoe gave me his license to continew in England, and to be absent from the parliament to be now holden in Ireland. Soe as I gaue my proxie to thearle of Ormonde : which I promised to doe. [In margin Lord Cork's son writes—"colledg of Yogbal."—G.]

31. The cowntes of Kent sent me by the Lo. Esmond two balles of her cordiall, and I sent her and the Cowntes of denbigh 2 bottles of yrishe vscebagh.

1 20. Lent to thearle of Kildare, which I sent him in his great necesseties by my Neece, doll freak, v^{li}.

4. Given to 4 of the Kings guard, which came vnto me to my howse to demaund their christmas offering for themselves and for all the rest of the yeomen of his Ma^{ty}s guard, five peeces, and to the Kings footmen a peec ; to his droms a peec, and other gratuetis, amounting in all to above 20^{li}.

5. Lent to capⁿ Raphe Horsey to supply his wants v^{li} by my neece Dorothy ffreke; and the 24th of ffebruary following I lent him other x^{li}, so as he owes me in both 7^{li}.

29 12 29. The noble Lo. deputy was in the chamber of presence in the Cowrt of whitehall, withall the rightes & ceremonies, created Barron of Rabye and Earle of strafforde; his lettres pattents for those two creacons being publicquely read by M^r
Secretary windebanck, and then by his Ma^{ty}, with all expressions of grace and favor delivered to his new Earle.

13. Sir John Cook, one of his Ma^{ty}s princepall secretaries, in regard of his great age and weakness, was licenced to retire from Court, and Sir Henry vane, treasurer of his Ma^{ty}s howse, was declared Secretary, and to howld bothe places. But Cook is recalled.

14 29. The Lorde Coventry, who was the good Lo. Keeper of the great seal of England, died at Durham house in the strand; whose death is generally Lamented, and by me in my particular love and respect to his Vertues.

20 29. This day as my son Broghill was at my table at dynner with me, he was secretly called away by a messadg from charles Riche, son to thearle of warwick, to answer a challengde he brought him from M^r Tho. Howard, Son to thearle of Barck-shier; whervppon Broghill secretly avoyded the hows, bought him a sworde, and fownd Jack Barry, whome he made choice of to be his second, and went bothe in Broghills coach, with their seconds, into the ffeilds, where they fought with their single Rapiers, and bothe returned without any wound, onely Broghill took away the ffrindg of M^r Howards glove with a passadg of his Rapier that went throughe from his hand between his Arme and the syde of his boddy, without any other harme, and ther-vppon their seconds parted them, and made them ffrends; and soe they came home, supped together; and all this for M^rs Harrison.

22. Richard ffrench, of Corke, yronmonger, having bought of M^r Walley 30 tons of my barr yron for 365^{li}. 13^s. 4^d, sent me over his bill of exchangd, chardging the payment vppon one M^r Byrkin, of Bristoll. I sent the bill of exchange to George Hellyard of that cytty, entreating him to receav that money for me, and to add thervnto of his own money other ciiij^{li}. vj^s. 8^d, soe to make it vp 500^{li}, and to paie the whole to M^r George Tutchett, brother to thearle of Castlehaven, to whome I did owe, as the laste payment of 5000^{li} for the purchase of Stalbridge, one thowsand pounds, wherof this 500^{li} is half; and when this 500^{li} is thus paid, then doe I owe to thearle of Castlehaven other 500^{li}, and to George Hellyar ciiij^{li}. vj^s. viij^d. But the moneis were not paid to M^r Hellyarde, but the 392^{li}. 13^s. 8^d was by M^r Berckin sent and paid me in London.

22. M^r Marcombes sent me an accompt of his disbursements, that he had disbursed 140^{li} for the travelling chardges of my 2 yongest sons, himself, and their servants, from the tyme they lefte London till they came to Geneva, which was 28 November, 1639: whervppon I sent him a bill of exchange to receive 140^{li} in geneva, with my lettres to my 2 sons, and himself, soe as he is wholly paid till the firste of December laste; And from thence he is to begin vppon their yearly allowance of 500^{li} a year; he having at his departure from London received of me heer 250^{li}, which is their half yeares exhibicon to mayntayn them from the firste of December till the firste of June next 164[0].

24. Sent by my servant John Edow to Serieant Mallet (?) 40^s, and to M^r Kinge, my learned cowncell, 40^s for their standing tearmes.

24. My cowntreyman, Sir John ffynche, of Canterburie, Lo.

cheef Justice of the comon pleas, being vppon the death of the good Lo. Coventry, late Lo. Keeper, made his successor, was yesterday brought in great pomp into the chancery, accompanied thither withall the great Lordes, councell^{ors}, nobles, and courtiers on horseback, with above 200 coaches following them.

31 20. W^m Bengfeild, that was my wives Taylor, had presently after her death 14^{li} sent him by Sir John Leek, which was all that my wife did in the noat of all her debts wryte down was due vnto him; for this 14^{li} he gaue his acquittance, not menconing therin that it was in part payment, or that there was any other moneis due vnto him, wherby I held him to be fully satisfied, having paid him all my wife in her death bed acknowledged to be due vnto him, and he having sent me his acquittance accordingly: But many yeares after he wrott lettres into Ireland, and procured Sir Ed Villiers his Ladies lettres in his favor, demanding a further debt of 49^{li} due by my wife, which for that I saw no reason for, I refused to pay. But, for that I was enformed that he was an honnest taylor, I this day gaue him 20^{li}, which he would haue accepted in part of payment; but I refused to give it him on those tearmes. But I gaue it him, and he accepted it, in full satisfaction; yet I promised him, that if heerafter I could satisfie my own conscience that there was any more due vnto him, I would send it him without his asking. But vntill I could be assured that the 49^{li} was due vnto him, he was to rest satisfied with the 20^{li} now given him, as W^m chettle then present at this our agreement can testefy.

31. The good Ladie Stafford gaue me a beazer stone, which with 3 balles of cordials the countess of Kent bestowed on me, I comitted to the Keeping of my Servant W^m Barber; and I haue sent one of the cordials by Adam wearing to M^r walley, who left London 12 feb^r, 1639.

February 1639.

29 4. Addam wearing and charles Hooker cam this day to London, and wearing geving me an accompt of the Barr yron, some irone, and 90 dozen of sithes that I lefte in my severall stoarhowses when I came laste out of Ireland, in the same he acknowledgeth to haue received 20 tons of barr iron at 13^{li} the ton, amounting vnto 260^{li}, for which he hath felled and squared 1000 tons of tymber for my vse, in Robert walshes woods of Kilbeg, parcell of Letrym, which I haue bought for the Roofing and building of the demolished cathedrall church of Lismoor, & for bwilding a howse for my son Robert at ffermoy; for which tymber he saieth I muste allow him in the accompt of those 20 tons of Barr yron ffour shillings for every ton of the roughe tymber and xvj^d that he hath paid for squarring every ton. And I haue given him in chardge to employ Harry Gaie the sawyer to measure, and mark for me with my Sealing Axe, all those 1000 tons of Squared Tymber, and to employ the moneis of the proceed of my 90 dozen of Sythes in the bringing down of my thowsand tonnes of squared tymber to the River syde; where it [is to] be laden into the boats to be lefte at ffermoy, and Lismoor for those bwildinges.

29 6. W^m Barber brought me from Sir Thomas Stafford 200^{li}, which I borrowed of him for ten daies, till my bills of exchangd wilbe paiable. Mr Nicholas Barham died 7 ffebruary, 1639.

10. The Kings rent of my Mannor of Stalbridge in dorsetshier being apporconed in thexchequer, between me and the reste of the purchazers that had formerly acquired parcels of that Mannor from thearle of Castlehaven, by the dividnt therof my 29 part of thentier Rent being 28—1—3—ob. was xvij^{li}. iij^s. iiij^d, which for one whole yeares Rent due to the queens Ma^{ty}, of whose Jointure that my Mannor is parcell, I this day paid, with xij^d for thacquittance.

12. I haue this day written to M^r walley of my agreement made with cherles Hooker that the 25 of Marche next he shall enter vppon the fearme called lyttle grace with the 147 acres that pillip clearck held, that was John Hodders, and be my tennant therof for 31 yeares at 31^{li} Rent, wherby my Rent wilbe increased x^{li} per annum; but if Hooker at 4 monethes end shall give warning, that when the firste year shalbe ended, he will surrender the bargaine, and doe then pay that yeares Rent, then that lease is to end, & I at liberty to lett it.

14. Remember what this day thearle of Barrymore in secret towld me touching the L. viscount Caher[^{'s}] intencons, if he had not faln out, what he intended to doe vppon a greater person, Etc.

16. I this daie did signe, Seale, and send into Ireland to my cozen Josua Boyle, three severall Indentures vnder my hand & Seale, with the counterpart of them for the L. Bishop of waterford and Lismoor to perfect lykewise, and to deliver to Josua to my vse; wherby I haue made the 4 curates of Tallaghe, Killoghternoy, Kilcockane, and Tamplemighell ats Kintre, belonging to the Abbey of Molannae within the diocesses of Lismoor, to be for ever heer after viccaridges presentative, condiconally that I, my heires and assignes shall for ever heerafter be the perpetuall patrons of those churches, and vppon all avoydances haue the presentacons of the vickars; and I haue appointed my present curates to be made the firste vickars of those 4 respective churches; viz, M^r doctor david Thomas of Tallagh, M^r westefeild of Killoghtermoy and Kilcockane, and M^r Shawe of Kintre, als Tamplemighell.

18. I gaue M^r Railtan, agent at cowrt for the Lo. leef-tenant of Ireland, ten peeces, for his own gratuetie, and for satisfackion of the secretary and clearck of the Signets ffes for procuring his Ma^s lettres, or warrant for passing vnto me and my heires of the new colledg hows, with thapertenanc of Bally-mvlcaske, and other the lands & tenements belonging to the said new colledge, the owld colledg howse in the churche lane in yoghal, and all the Rectories, vickaridges, and tyethes, onely reserve[d] to the Kinge, Etc.

18. ~~20~~. Thomas Cross being imprisoned in westm^r vppon anexecution at the sute of one M^r clyfford, and prosecuted by one M^r Butcher, an attorney of staple In, I endeavored his liberte & sent him ten pownds by Eddoe for his enlardgment. And Sir Tho. stafford and his Ladie gaue him other x^{li}.

18. The money due vppon his Ma^s [part] to Sir Thomas Buttons executors was 273^{li}. 15^s, wherof 124^{li} was due vnto me; the remayn being 149^{li}. 15^s John wibren, servant to Sir Adam Loftus, would haue receaved.

24. I this daie, by my servant W^m chettle, paid to thearle of castlehaven 300^{li}, and makes 1300^{li} that I haue paid his Lop since my coming to London, and since our laste composicon, I having formerly in Ireland paid other 3005^{li} to the said Earle, soe as I haue in all paid this Lo^p of the 5005^{li} which I was to satisfie him for thabsolute purchaze of the Inheritance of the Mannor of Stalbridg in dorcetshier, 4305^{li}. I doe now owe vnto his Lo^p 700^{li}, which I am by my bill to paie him, with the consideracon after 8 per cent at six monethes end, which is on the 24 of Auguste, 1640. It is to be remembred that I gaue my single bill of debt to his Lo^p to paie him the laste thowsand pownds on the xiiij of this moneth, and was then provided of the money and ready to haue paid the whole, but his Lo^p being indebted to his brother in 700^{li}, they bothe desired me to paie thearle onely 300^{li}, which I did, and [he] endorced the receipt therof vnder his Lo^{ps} hand vppon my said bill, with our agreement thervppon that I should pay the other 700^{li} with the forbearance therof, 24 Auguste, 1640: And when this shalbe paid, then is his Lo^p fully satisfied, and wee both cleer.

24. I purchazed a licens from the L. Archbishop of canterbury, vnder his seale of office for my self, & xj more to eat ffleshe this lent, the ffes wherof coste a Marck.

26. I this day for my son dongarvan, and at his request, chardged M^r walley with the payment of 200^{li}, by 3 severall bills of exchange, for M^r wandesford, of London, to be paid at ten daies [after] sight to one M^r [blank space].

27. This daie assured I was by Sir Thomas stafford that thearle of Kildare sought him owt in Corte, and made him offer, that if he would give him 300^{li} in ready money, he would sell him the Rent and Revercon of the Mannor & Lands of Curbyunny route, 2 ploughlands in Kirrecurrehy; Reserving to him and his heires his owld Rent of ffive marks which Sir walter coppinger formerly paid.

29. I presented thearle of Bedford with the great pye of ffesants, woodcocks, and plovers that Tho. Murrey sent me from Stalbridge.

29. W^m chettle receaved of M^r watson, gunmaker in Tower street, 200^{li}, vppon the bill of exchangd which his brother, M^r Thomas watson, of dublin, chardged him to pay me, And other 2 of the 500^{li} from M^r bancks.

Marche 1639 and 1640.

20. The admesurement of that part of the demesnes of Lismoor which I reserv in my own handes, is by the measure of Mr Thomas Capon 365 acres, one quarter, and 19 perch. And the Rents now answered yeerly owt of the 2 ploughlands of Rathcormack & Kill[illegible] are 134^{li}. 9^s. 3^d ster.

1. I wrote to my Lo. goringe, by my servant gerrard Booth, to be by his L[ordship] presently furnished with 300^{li}, parcell of those 4300^{li} his lo^p was by his bill to have paid me the 12 of november laste; but he did not send it me by him, yet in thafternoon his L[ordship] sent me worde by a gent of his own that he would not fayle to send it me to my hows to morrow in thafternoon; which day Sir Thomas Stafford is to pay those 300^{li} for the purchase of curbynny neer vnto carrickelyne, and the two ploughlands thervnto belonging for my son ffrances, of 200 2 200 thearle of Kildare. And the L. goringe sent me the 300^{li}, which I sent him my receipt for the same. And the said 300^{li} was by me (with other 200^{li} which I had formerly borrowed of Sir Tho. Stafford), in all 500^{li}, was by me sent by will^m chettle & Thomas Langdale to him in Cowrt, whoe in their presence paid the 300^{li} to thearle of Kildare, whervpon his Lo^p perfected the deeds of Curbynney.

200 5 200. The money I lent Luke Bradie, esqr., to redeem him owt of execucon, for which he had been vij weeks imprized in the marshalseies at dublin at the sute of thexecutors of one Mr stephenton, were three hundreth pownds ster :, for repayment wherof he mortgaged vnto me the howse & lands of Tomgreny which were in his own possession; and all those other villadges and lands, parcells of the said Mannor of Tomgreny, that peeter Warr was his tennant of; ffor which he paid him xxxvj^{li} a year, out of which he was for to paie me from ffebruary, 1635 (when I supplied him with the 300^{li}), thirtie pownds a year, and the remaine of vj^{li} per annum to Luke brady. Then Luke having formerly mortgaged those lands vnto my cozen Thomas Boyle, clearck, in truste, for & to the vse of his godlie and Religeows brother the L. Bichshop of Corke, now by gods permission L. Archbichshop of Tuam, who the[roff] complayned to the Lo. deputy of me, and Luke Brady [words torn.—G.] we deteigned Tomgreany from him, wherof he had [torn away] estate and conveighance in mortgage of 300^{li}; to c[leer which] things M^r ffisher, the Kings attorney, so advized my agent, Jo[sua Boyle], to paie three hundrith and thirtie pounnds to the Ar[chbichshop], and therwith to purchaze in that former estate; [In margin—“In January, 1638.”—G.] soe to [save] all my former Interest, which I being in England, he paid that without my directions, nay, contrary to my expresse letters, soe as Luke Brady and his lands owe me 630^{li} ster: that I am in ready money out of purse.

5. This daie the L. Leeftenant of Ireland departed London vearly early in the morninge in a private manner to avoyde the concowrse of my selfe and many others that desired to waite vppon [him]. He had the queens coach with sixe horse[s] to carry him owt of the citty.

7. wheras in September laste vppon the lettres of Randall fenton and the request of his son george ffenton, of bandon-bridge, I delivered and lent the said george one C.^{li} ster: in ready money gratis, to be repaid me at the Savoy on candlemas day following, wherin they failed me: I haue this daie, at the request of my daughter Barrymore, to sett forward her bwiilding of Castlelyons this next spring, which otherwise would haue been neglected and at a stand for want of money to pay ther worckmen, delivered her Randall ffentons lettres and george ffentons bill obligation of 200^{li} endorced on his ffathers lettres, with my own lettres to them to paie the said C.^{li} to my nephue John Boyle and to Ned Morley or any one of them for to be employed in, with other v^{li} M^r walley delivered him when he was geting to Lymerick to the Lo. deputy, the said bwdings. And this with another C.^{li} which M^r walley by my direction lent for that vse, since my comynge into England; 50^{li} that I lent thearle of Barrymore in London vpon his vowes and faithfull promises to repay it me within 3 daies; ij^{li} I delivered M^{rs} ffalckner in my daughters sickness for her doctor: And the 206^{li}. 14^s I supplied his Lo^p in ready money withall at Lismoor, to furnishe him for his Journey with me into England, wherof will power hath onely repaid M^r walley lxxxxvj^{li}, makes his Lo^ps debt vnto me for which I haue noe specialty or other assurance to be ccclxxx^{li}. xiiij^s ster: 393^{li}. 14^s, which in ready money I haue freely lent them. More W^m Barber lent his L^p of my moneis 29 January, 1638, 50^s in all. [Lord Cork's son writes below the figures 443^{li}. 393 14^s ster. 'Lord Barry's debts.'—G.]

9. I delivered M^r Richard Banckes my lettres to M^r walley, chardging him with the payment of one thowsand pounds ster: to George Hayman, of yoghall, as he should haue occacion to vse it. And I haue M^r Bancks his bill to paie me heer in London 500^{li} therof on May daie next, and thother 500^{li} the firste of July following, & M^r Robert Hayman, of Mynhead, is also to give me his lyke security. And his son, George Hayman, vpon receipt of the money is to give his bond to M^r walley that my 1000^{li} shalbe repaid me as before[said].

11 20. Vpon the lettre and sute of M^r W^m ffell, whome I formerly presented to the vickaridge of Kyllaghin, in Kerry, he being now to exchange it for a better with M^r ffrances Evans, vpon M^r ffells resignacon I sent him my presentacon to ffrances Evans to Killaghin.

16. I formerly gaue my credditt to M^r Richard Bancks, of London, silkeman, that M^r Murtagh o Brien, of Annagh, in the countie of Cross Tiperary, should, vppon his bill of exch[andg], haue 53^{li} paid by M^r david Barry, of Robertstown, his son in lawe, to M^r Georg Hayman, of yoghall; but his bill ~~is~~ not [being] paid nor accepted, M^r walley was enforced to pay, by my order to pay the money: And now, he being againe in wants in London, was vppon my credit supplied by M^r Bancks with other 53^{li} to be paid as before, on May day next. And I haue taken his bond of 200^{li}, that he shall pay the whole cvj^{li} to M^r walley at Lismoor on the laste of Aprill next, wherof M^r walley is to deteign the 53^{li} [therof] which of my moneis I paid, and to paie thother 53^{li} therof to georg Hayman.

 whitehall sworne of his Ma^{ty}s moste honorable privie councell of Englande, and admitted and plased a councellor with great grace and favor from his Ma^{ty}s, and all the Lordes; ffor which addicon of honnor, god make me everlastingly thanckfull to my god and to my Kinge.

July 1640.

1. yesterdaie after the deeds for assigning over vnto me the leas of above 40 yeares now to come in the Rectory of Halberton was drawn vp, by our councell ag[r]eed vppon, and engrosed for my security of the repayment of two Thowsand pounds which I had received, as my marriadg porcon with M^{rs} Elizabeth Killogreev, my son ffrances his wife ; and at Sir Thomas Staffords request, had given it back again vnto him to keep it at 8 per centum ; he desired me to forbear taking of that his lease of the ~~20~~ said Rectory of Halberton in county devõñ, being derived from the Dean and Chapter of Bristoll, and to take his own bond of 4000^{li} to repay me the 2000^{li} within 6 monethes after demaund, and in the mean tyme to pay 40^{li} a quarter for the vse therof, for my daughter in lawes maintenance ; which bond I accepted of, and thervppon gave him vp his lease and all other his wrytings concerning the parsonadge of Halberton.

I. W^m chettle received of Sir Thomas Stafford 20^{li}, ffor which I gaue georg stafford, his mothers man, my bill of exchandg for Augustine Atckins, and Moylan encanty to paie it at Bandon bridge for Sir Thomas his mother.

~~20~~ I ~~20~~. I haue contracted, and signed indented articles with Marten Nun, Tho. woodcock, and Edmond Graie of London, ironmongers, and sould them 67 tons of Rodnaile yron to be delivered owt of my store howse at yoghall, by waight owt of my skales there, at xv^{li}. x^s the Ton, and 74 tons of barr iron to be delivered as before at xij^{li} the ton. And haue given them 7. 7 and 7 mo[n]thes day of payment, amounting in all vnto 2000^{li} ster : wherof the first payment of 1000 marks is to be payd at the Savoy the first daie of ffebruary next, 1000 marks the firste day of September, 1641 ; and the laste 1000 marks on the ffirste day of Aprill, 1641. And they were all bound jointly and severally in 3000^{li} to make those payments ; M^r Tho. Bowrcke, Sir charles coots factor, assuring me of all their sufficiencies. The iron is to be delivered within 6 daies after tharrivall of their shipp at yoghall ; and I bear no chardg nor adventure but the weighing and delivery therof in my storehows in yoghall.

Lettres to M^r walley and charles pyne by Josua Boyle for to deliver it.

1. I chardged M^r walley to paie for M^r qurreles, of Roter-dame, vnto M^r Bagbear, of yoghall, 30^{li}, which M^r quarreles, at my request, supplied yong Tom Brown, or Sir peeter Apsely for him withall in the Low cowntrey.

2 20. Sir Bovill Greenvile, having in the last preceedinge moneth paid W^m Barber for me 400^{li} in part of 600^{li} that I had paid Roger Barabant, Jun^r, for some leases in ffermoy, made by Sir Barnard greenvile to walter Cottle, which Sir Bovill was bownd to bwy in for me by thadward of Serieant Glanvile, was ordered to paie me other 200 marks. And this day he hath given me his 2 bonds for payment of 100 marks in the savoie the firste of ffebruary next, and 100 marks the firste of Auguste, 1641; whervppon I haue given him vp his 2 former bonds, which lay ten yeares forfeicted in my hands, & given warr[an]t to my cozen peeter nailer, of New In, my attorney, to consent that Sir Bovill shall reverse his owtlary.

2 20. M^r W^m ffreke having been many yeares in arrear for Rent of the two ploughlands in Kynatalloon in the some of 195^{li}, I this day accepted of Arthure ffreak & Leeftenant James ffiches bond for the payment therof on Midsomer daie next. And that perfected, I made Leeftenant ffynche & his wife a lease in Revercon of those 2 ploughlands for 31 yeares, encreasing his rent from 30^{li} vnto 60^{li} per annum. The leas I this daie sent into Ireland by Josua Boyle, who this day departed London with Leeftenant ffinch towards Lismoor.

2 20. I bowght of John graie, horsecowrser, who dwels at the sign of the Bell in Smythfeild, 5 black yonge stone horses and a black gelding, for the postillion of my Coach ; for which I paid him cxj^{li}. v^s, god bless them. And I paid parkins my coach maker, in Smythfeild, 35^{li} for a bare new travelling coach without harness.

2. There being a collection made by the Lordes of the councell at the Table for [the] releef of the three daughters of Sir Henry Marvyn, who were in great wants, I gaue to their purse v^{li} ster : ; but I came owt of London before Sir W^m Beecher called to me for it, but M^r parkins, without any order from me, paid that v^{li}.

2. My servant John Travers having been vnder arrest & in restrinct above 14 daies, I gaue him 30^{li} to free him of his imprisonment ; for which he hath promised to serve me till Mydsomer next, 1641.

3. Sent by my Cozen John Nailer, of graies In, to owld Sir Edmond Crippes, of Canterbury, a pair of ritch embrodered gloves, which Sir W^m Jones presented me withall.

4 ~~20~~. W^m Barber paid M^r Mewtas, the clearck of the councell : more peeter Maber, that he sent for the ffees 21^{li}, for his own and all other the ffees for swearing me a privie Councillor of England.

4. W^m Barber by my ordre delivered M^r Richard Bancks in ffeet street, sylckman, this daie, in ready money, 240^{li} ster :, to satisfie M^r Marcombes his bill of exchange when in my absence it shalle be brought to Sir Tho. Stafford, and that he shall direct him to paie it, and to take in the bill of exchange with his receipt that he shalbe directed to pay it vnto. And this is to defraie the chardge of my two sons and him at Geneva till the first day of december next, from primo Junij laste, 1640.

4. Given M^r Thompson, my chapleyn, who hath supplied that service in my hous since M^r Spicer went into Ireland, x^{li} ster.

4. Lent my pacata Hibernie to Sir Arthure cayles, which was delivered for him to thearle of Salisburies porter, and to Sir Thomas Stafford, the historie of Edw the 4th.

5. I haue this daie written to M^r Burles, of Milckstreet, to paie to M^r W^m parckins, my Tailor, on the first day of Auguste next 300^{li}, wherof 160^{li} is for himselfe; C.^{li} as my gratuetie to the Ladie Raleigh, 30^{li} for M^{rs} Baslye, and x^{li} to M^{rs} chapman; bothe which laste somes amounting to 40^{li} therof ar for lynnens and lace that my son ffrances without my prevetie cawselesly took vp of them againste his marriadge.

6 ~~20~~. This day my selfe, with my daughter dongarvan and my son ffrancks wife, rod in a hackney coach hired for xxxv^s to the Corte at Oatlands, where by the favor of the cowntes of denbighe, his Ma^{ty} was pleased gratiowslie to free me from lending him those 5000^{li} that the Lorde cottington by messadge in his Ma^{ts} name had some 4 daies before perswaded me vnto. But when I had in the queens Ma^{ts} presence and heering expressed my dishabillety to supply his Ma^{ty} with those 5000^{li} demaunded in lone, by reason I had been constreigned soe lately to pay his Ma^{ty} 15,000^{li} for the mean proffits of the colledg of yoghall; 36000^{li} for my laste subsidies of the proceeding parliament in Ireland, to furnish my son Dongarvan with a C. horse & horsemen armed, and to sett forth with him my sons Lewis and Roger to attend his Ma^{ty} into Scotland, which coste me neer 5000^{li}: that in parliament now on foot my 4 subsidies did amount vnto 2400^{li}, wherof I had already paid my firste subsedy, being 600^{li}: that my own expence in howskeping and maintenance of my children, my ffive sons all grown to the state of men, were veary chardgeable to me; I did humbly desire his Ma^{ty} to accept from me as a present and guifte of a thowsand peeces at Michas next: Which he did.

7. I bought in smythfield 5 yong black stone horses, and one black gelding, for my coach, which coste me cxjⁱⁱ v^s, & I also bought a new light travelling coach, with six new harnesses, which coste me xlvjⁱⁱ more.

20 8. The 4 of october laste I arrived from Stalbridge at London, & began to keep howse at Sir Thomas staffords howse in the savoye. And this 8 of July being the daie proclaymed for the generall faste thorough owt all Englande, I with my son Broghill departed London veary early in the morning, and cam to the begining of priars [prayers ?] at Egham, and there kept our 20 ffaste, and devocons. And that evening, god be ever praized, the queens Ma^{ty} was safely delivered of a yong son, or duke, whome I beseech thalmighty to bless with all heavenly & worldly blessings.

9. Sir Thomas stafford and his Ladie cam from Oatlands to meet and dyne with me at Egham, and there her La[dyship] put M^{rs} Hill from being any longer her daughters gentlewoman.

10 20. Thearle of Barrymore cam after me to Egham and bemoaned himself vnto me, that except I did now supply him with one other C.^{li} besides those 443^{li}. 14^s that I had lent him & his Lady during their stay in London, and the C.^{li} I had promised to supply his wife withall at her comyng to the Bathe, he could not follow his Regim^t of 1200 soldiers to the borders of Scotland, nor ffree his wife, children, and servants owt of the cyttie, to begin their return into Ireland; and I having no spare money wrott my lettres to M^r Richard Banckes, neer the Temple gate, silckman, entreating him to furnish his Lo^p presently with one C.^{li}, and I would allow it in part payment of those Thousand pounds he is bownd to pay me on Michas day next; which he Kyndely did paie his Lo^p, in all 644^{li}. 14^s.

10. my Lo. Goring sent his footman after me to Egham with his lettres entreating me to chardg M^r walley by my bill of exchange to paie one thowsand powns to him that should bring his Lo^{ps} lettres, & my bill vnto him, and his Lo^p would repay it me in London vppon the xvth of october next; which I did, and returned him my bill of exchangdg inclosed in my own lettre by his footman.

13. I, dongarvan, Moll & Bettie cam safely to Stalbridge.

16. John downham of yoghall delivered W^m Barber 175^{li}, and Edward Skott of the same 340^{li}, which I chardged on M^r walley to be repaid therin vppon sight of my bills at Lismoor.

16. John dawnter of yoghall paid W^m Barber in money 40^{li}, and I gaue him my bills on M^r walley, chardging him to paie him at Lismoor vppon sight C.^{li}, I having accepted M^r W^m Rideowts bond to bring me to stalbridge thother 60^{li}, the laste of this moneth: which he paid accordingly.

21. Thearle of Barrymores waggon being destitute of a draught horse to goe in it from Stalbridge to London, I put thervnto one of my coach geldings called gray purdam, which coste me 20 marks, which I bestowed on his Lo^p.

22. Nichas Roberts Ballymarter, and Miles collyns of yoghall, delivered W^m Barber in money lxxx^{li}, and a bond to [me] of one M^r Edwarde Davies of lampett to paie me other C[xx]^{li} the 24th of Auguste next, whervvpon I gaue them my bills of exchange chardging M^r walley [to pay them] 200^{li} vppon sight. And the 120^{li} M^r daves paid accordingly.

27. M^r weston of stalbridge prevailed with me to give my bill of exchange for M^r walley to paie x^{li} vnto georg Snook, and I haue their bonde to repaie it me at Stalbridge the 6 of september next; which he repaid me accordingly.

28. John glover having lefte of Sir Robert Tynts money with M^r Robert Hayman, of Mynhead, 400^{li}, entreated me to accept of it there, and to chardg M^r walley to paie it to Sir Robert at Lismoor; whervvpon I sent my bills of exchange by John glover (inclosed in my lettres to Robert Hayman) with this direction that if he would secure me to pay those 400^{li} on Michas day next in london with the thowsand pounds that he and M^r Richard Bancks, of London, silkman, were bound to pay me at the Savoy that day, then he should deliver owt of his lettres my bills to John glover to receav the 400^{li} of M^r walley, otherwise to return my bills canceled; and by him I wrott to W^m Tynt & M^r walley. M^r Hayman paid me 200^{li}, and chardged M^r Richard Bancks, of London, to pay me thother 200^{li} ten daies after sight.

28. My lo. george digby and my lo. powlett did each of them send a fatt Buck, I and my ffamely killing one of them in sherborne park. And Sir John Stangwidge [Standish?] sent me another.

28. M^r ffrances Kingsmill sent his man to Stalbridge w[ith] other 50^{li} that my son Dongarvan receaved, & I at his request chardged M^r walley by my bills of exchange to paie it vppon sight.

29. Cormock m^c ffynneen Carty, of Booltenaghe, Thomas o Leighly, of Knockcullen, and [blank] of thabbey of Scowre, to carry them home, borrowed of my son Knyalmeaky iij^{li}. ij^s vpon their bill, & I took back their bill and paid him his iij^{li}. ij^s who are at Michas next to repay the money to augustine Atkins for me: And I gawe Cormock son v^s. 9. M^r walley, by my order, lent 40^{li} to the factor of my London yronmongers, which Thomas woodcock and his partners this daie repaid me.

15. Richard french, of Corke, was this day at the Savoy to pay me 240^{li}, but fa[yled].

17. paid Thomas wright, the sedan maker, dwelling in white ffriers, for my new sedan, lyned with carnacon, wrought vel[v]ett, and all other furneture and chardges, xxvij^{li}.

22. paid my cozen John Nayler, of Renvile, neer canterbury, 200^{li}, and is in part payment of 1000^{li} that he lent my son dongarvan on his single bond ; which money I haue engaged myself by my subscripcon to pay him if my son failed, as he did ; soe as he is yet vnpaid 800^{li}. [In margin Lord Cork's son writes—“a repetition of my fathers engagement to pay my cozen Naylor 1000.”]

24 20. I having formerly paid my son Dongarvan 30^{li} did this daie paie him other 30^{li}, it being 60^{li} for the half yeares diett in London of my daughter Mary and ffrancks wife, ending at May next, for themselves & their two maydes.

30. W^m Mallery brought me clx^{li} which he delivered W^m chettle, and I gaue him my bill of exchangd, chardginge M^r walley to paye the lyke some of 160^{li} to Sir Robert Terrell, Knight, to whose vse it was delivered me, and delivered my bills and lettres to M^r walley vnto John Duck, of Curriglas.

30 ~~20~~ ~~20~~. W^m Barber delivered to thearle of Bedford two Iron chestes, and in his L^{ps} presence, at Bedford house, in London, did put into them ffive thowsand and five hundreth pounds in golde and silver, in dischargd of my bo[nd] to thearle of Suffolck, and brought me the keys.

May 1641.

~~20~~ 18 ~~20~~. I, with thearle of Bathe, the L. Rannelaghe, Sir Addam Loftus, Sir Robert Kinge, Sir John clotworthe and M^r Nicholas Barnewall, are Jointely bownd in three severall bonds to Sir Henry wallop, to Thomas some, of London, Alderman, and vnto M^r Edmond and John Ashe; wee are all bownde to the two M^r Ashes in one bond, for saving them harmles for payment of ffour thowsand one hundreth and three skoar pounds, on the 20th day of November, 1641. Sir Henry wallop, Alderman some, and the 2 M^r Ashes, are bound to Sir John pennington in 2,080^{li}, to Sir W^m Acton in 832^{li}, to M^r Rich : woodward in 728^[li], to Roger draper in 520^{li}, making iuste in the whole 4,160^{li}.

Those moncis were by sec[re]ttary Vanes his Ma^{ts} secretaries means, borrowed & taken vp heer in London, and paid to Sir Addam Loftus, his Ma^{ts} vice threasurer, to his Ma^{ts} vse, ffor disbanding the new irish armye; and I with thearle of Bath and thother gent firste abovenamed, ar bownd to haue the 4160^{li} to be paid the 20th of November, 1641, and to save Sir Henry wallop and the rest harmles.

18. I wrott also to M^r walley to lend 2000^{li} to Sir Addam Loftus, vice threasurer of Ireland, to his Mat^s vse, towards the payment also of the new yrish army that were to be disbanded, and to deliver those 2000^{li} to the same person that the Lo. Justice parsons and Sir Addam Loftus should send vnto him to receav it, Sir Addam promising me to depart the cowrt for Ireland the Monday following, and before he lefte London to give me security to my content, to repay me my 2000^{li} before the end of next Michas tearm in dublin, owt of the firste of the subserie moneis. But when my lettres to M^r walley were gon, he slighted me, tarried 20 daies in London and never delivered me any securitye.

My Ladie stafforde gaue me a warrant for a Buck owt of my Lo. viscount Mowntagues parck, which I bestowed on M^r Kinge, of Sherbarn, my learned Councell, towards his Readers ffeast in the Inner Temple, and a warrant for another buck from thearle of warwick; another for thearle of Bristoll, and a third for M^r peeter catook. M^{rs} Fitzgerald of 5 brought one C.^{li} to me, and I sent it by her self to thearle of Kildare, and gaue her my bond to repay it at 6 monethes end with the Intrest.

Thearle of Suffolck gaue my son Broghill a warr[ant] for a Buck owt of his parck at Awdlay end, which I gaue the Lord prymate.

The Lo. Goring gaue me a warrant for a buck owt of the cowntess of carlyles parck, of waltham, which I gaue to my daughter the great belleed [= bellyed.—G.] cowntess of Kildare.

20 18 20. Sir Addam Loftus in my vnderstanding vsed me vncivilly, for wheras the 7th of this moneth I wrott to M^r walley and sent my lettres vnsealed inclosed in my other lettres to Sir W^m parsons, and all in Sir Henry Vanes pacquet, in which I gaue Mr walley in chardg to deliver 2000^{li} ster : in money to such person as the said Lo. Justice parsons, and Sir Addam Loftus, with their Jointe lettres should send to Lismoor for it ; and this 2000^{li} I was willing to lend gratis to his Ma^{ty} towards the payment of the new irish army, the better (when they were fully paid) to haue them peaceably disbanded ; wher-vnto I was the sooner induced vppon Sir Addams faithfull promise presently to give me security to my content that I should be repaid my 2000^{li} in dublin, in November next, owt of the firste subsedy moneis ; but when my warrant to pay the money as before [stated] was gon to Mr walley the 14 of this moneth, I towld him that I had expected the security he had promised me from the 7 till then, his answer vnto me in a harsh and displeasing manner was that he had no security to give me but his own bond ; whervppon I gaue expresse order to Sir W^m parsons not to part with, nor pay any of my 2000^{li}, nor of my 1300^{li} I endorced him to receav of Abraham Riches till he had so good security as he would receav for himself.

[328: this page was evidently written first, and then the Earl found he had turned over two leaves, leaving 326 and 327 blank. Turning back, he filled them in with these preceding May entries, commencing at 18 May, 1641.—G.]

[Ibid.—"Concerning the Er. of Kildares debt of 500."—G.]

Januarie 1641.

2. M^r Isack Thornborow, collector of his Ma^{ty}s customes at Mynhead, to whom at my embarcking there I delivered x^{li} to defraie the chardges of my horses and groomes there for want of shipping I lefte there behynd me, laid owt that 10^{li} and much more money, and vppon my lettres bought & sent me over to yoghall 6 barrells of gunpowder at vj^{li}. v^s. to the barrell: 37^{li}. 10^s. 0; 300 of matche at 50^s per C., vij^{li}. x^s; xi^c ^{ed} of lead at xj^s. vj^d per Cth, v^{li}. xij^s. iij^d; 9 casks to put the powder and matche in, xvj^s; ffor warfage, literadge, porters, selleradge, and other pettichardges xxxj^s. iij^d, as by M^r Thorneberowes bill of particulars apereth, that his whole disbursement apereth to be cvij^{li}. xiiij^s. 4^d; wherof I lefte with him x^{li}, and the rest amounts vnto 98^{li}. 14^s. 4^d he disbursed for me, and Receaved in 20 money at Mynhead of one ffrances Rice, of Lymerick, merchant, C.^{li}, which he chardged on me to be paid him in lymerick; whervppon I accepted, and subscribed his bill, and directed W^m Eames, at Askeating, the receavor of my Rents in the county of lymerick [to] paie Rice, or daniell clancie, th[e s]aid C.^{li}. he is overpaid xxv^s. viij^d.

25 20. dannell clancie, of Lymerick, gaue me 3 bills of exchand[g] chardging his brother ffrances whyte of the same, merchant resident, with moneis at Mynhead, to pay for me there at 3 daies sight to M^r Isack Thornebury 250^{li}; which I haue by my severall lettres ordered him in money, or by good bills to send M^r W^m parckins, therwith to discharge Marcombes his bills for the lyke some to Michaell casteel for my 2 yongest sons next quarters allowanc begining the first of march, & ending the firste of June, 1642. I haue given danell clanchy my bill to repay at Askeating those 250^{li} within 20 daies after M^r Thornbury shall signefie to me vnder his hand his receipt therof at Mynhead. Clanches lettres of advice & firste bill I sent by Symon gibens widdo, the second by Sir W^m cowrtneys son, & the 3rd I keep.

29. I departed from Lismoor, and came that night with Sir Hardres Waller to yoghall to preserv that towne, and cam

20 27 20. At the importunetic of the Lo. president I ioyned in a bond of 2000^{li} with his Lo^p, my son dongarvan, Sir Haddress Waller, and Sir Edward denney to Sir Robert Tynt, for payment of one thowsand pownds in Bristoll at sixe monethes end. This 1000^{li} the L. President did sollicit me to vse my credit with Sir Robert to procure for setting foorth of his Ma^{ts} ship the Swalla from Kinsale, and other his Ma^{ts} services. The bond he sent me signed and sealed by the other 4 above named, my name being entred therin ; which bond, as his Lo^p desired, I signed and sealed in the presence of Sir peerce Smyth & Tho. Badnedg, but I did never deliver it as my deed. This bond (in no other manner by me perfected) I imploied Sir John Leek & Thomas Badnedge with to Bally crynnan ; and Sir Robert Tynt veary freely and readely concluded to furnish his Lo^p withall in furtherance of his Ma^{ts} service : and then [sent] 50^{li} therof vnto me by Badnedge, with his lettres to his servant, Robert Hole, to paie the 950^{li} to make vp the 1000^{li} in yoghall.

20. I lent the gunner for the Maior of yoghall 100 weight of sheet lead taken from my Tarris of the colledge, and vnto Serieant maior Appleyard another hundreth weight therof for to make Case Shott for the ordenance, and to him, of the 78 pykes that came from Annarie vnheaded, 40 ; I gaue Sir John Brown other xvijj ; and W^m Ireland that delivered all thaboue particulers hathe the 20 in remayn for me.

20. My son dongarvan hath lent my 12 new Muskets that Tom Murrey sent me from Stalbridge, with such hamers & match cocks to leeftenant ffynche ; and I sent to my son Broghill to Lismoor 10 new carbynes, coste 15^{li}.

February 1641.

7 29. I had 2 lighters Laden with barriron, contening 20 tons caste awaie in the harbor of yoghall through charles pynes negligenc in not observing my directions in sending down the River my iron when it was calme and seazonable, and by suffer-
29 ing the lighters to be overladen with other mens goods. I sowld 4 tonnes of barr iron, delivered at yoghall, to Edmond Moroghe of Corkes sons for 60^{li} ster: I sent in Arnolde win-
29 tels barck to Mynhead [blank] barres of iron to M^r Isack Thornebury, but the weight is vncerten, but he must be accomptable for [blank] more that was put aboard his Ship & embezeled.

12 29. I delivered Abraham deneys, factor to M^r James Smyth, of Torrington, 400^{li}, to be [by] him carried to Torrington, and there delivered to the said James Smith, his M^r, and to M^r Hugh Pruste, to be by them bothe disbursed for me to those gent that capⁿ Arscott was indebted vnto, and for which M^r Jason was bound with him as his suerty, for whose indempments I entred into bond to M^r Jason; and I also formerly, viz., 19^o decembris, 1641, delivered another C.^{li} for the lyke vse to the said Abraham dennys, which M^r Smith r[ecieved] and paid to one of them M^r Jason was bound vnto for capⁿ arscott; soe as those 500^{li} thus paid to Abraham dennys makes my whole payment for Annary to be 454⁰^{li}. Then I alsoe sent by the said Abraham with the laste 400^{li} [blank] barres of iron, which M^r Smith or he ar accomptable to me.

And the tenth of Marche, 1641, I sent to M^r George Hellyar, of Bristoll, by Marmaduke Shafto, 460^{li}, to make full payment of the ffive Thowsand pounds for the purchase of Annarye. But if he land at Mynhead he was to deliver the money to M^r

Isack Thornebury, to be by him paid over to M^r James Smith and M^r Hugh Pruste [three words illegible.—G.] Anaryes wholly paid for.

Marche [1641 and 1642.]

1 20. My son dongarvan, with charles vavaso[re] his [leeftennent of one thowsand fresh ffoot, and Sir John Brown, and Capⁿ W^m Kingsmill, with their 200, in all 1200 foot, by direction of the L. president w[en]t from yoghall to attend his Lo^p this night at Lismoor, and so to or towards the carrick, 20 to bring the Countess of Ormond & her children; leaving me at yoghall to secure it & the harbor in a moste weake and despicable Condison, without any of his Ma^{ts} Soldiers, but my own weak Companies; wherof 40 are gon vp the river in the pynck; 10 at Camphier; 10 at Stroncally; 10 at Ballynatra; 5 at Inchecrynnaght; 5 at Inchequin; 4 at corneveagh; 3 at the Lodge, all Musketteers; & Serieant Maior Appleyard had carried away with him the Keys of the Towngates, many prisoners lefte in the co[ur]t of garde, & the mvnicon weakly guarded.

2 20. The L. president with tharmy (wherin my sons dongarvan & Broghill with their 2 Troopers were), rose from Lismoor and marched to Capoquin, and burned the decie[s] and enca[mp]ed that night at and abowt Knockm[ore].

3 20. This day they came to dongarvan; burned the subberbs, wan [z-won] the Town hall, saving the castle, which offered to give it vp so they might depart with their armes, which was refuzed; and tharmy killed ab[out] 200 in the town.

20 4 20. I dispatched Capⁿ Thomas williams from yo[ghall] in a ship with 6 peeces of ordenances we[ll] manned & furnished with means, meat, mvnic[on], and 4 barrels of powder ; 2 barrels of bul[lets] ; store of match ; to assiste his Lo^p at Dung[arvan] ; and I lent Tho williams 80 rownd shott for ordenance towards the Recovery of that ca[stle].

20 4 20. I sent Broghill 20 men carabynes, the better to arme his troop, lent the maior [of yoghall and] Serieant Maior Ap[pleyard—torn away—which] coste me xvj^{li}.

10. This daie my son dongarvan embarcked from yoghall for England, and in his companie my brother Sir W^m ffenton, will Hyde, ffranck ffooth, and marmaduke Shaftoe, by whome I sent my great square Trunck corded, and therin my plate & silver vessell, 2 sutes of my apparrell, with my Ash colored wrought vell[v]ett gown, Etc : memoradum & particuler with W^m chettle ; and gaue order, that at the landing of them at Mynhead, M^r Isack Thornebury should send to Tho Murrey to fetch this great Trunck, as alsoe 2 other Trunckes, another cheste of plate & silver vessells, and my redd cabynet of wrytings in a wag[o]n from thence to Stalbridge.

10. I also delivered then in ready money to the said Marmaduke shafto 460^{li}, with my order to deliver it to M^r Isack Thorneboreie, with my Trunck of plate and cloathes at Mynhead, and to [be] by him paid over to M^r Hugh pruste, and M^r James smith, of Torrington, who I gaue order to see it paid over to Capten John Arscott, in full payment & satisfaction of the ffyve Thowsand pounds which was the full price and purchase of my howse & lands called the Barton of Annary in devonshier ; which I haue by the payment of those laste ffowre hundreth and threescoar powndes faithfully and honestly paid ; and I hope that as I haue paid my moneis iustelic and truly, so god will bless and continew it to me, and myne.

18. M^r Snell towld me he had vppon the [landes] he howldes of me 2 stray english [torn away—G.] which I directed him to keep for me.

18. The Lo. Inchequin landed at yoghall from Mynhead and went by sea from hence to corke; and capten piggott, who cam from dublin by sea with 50 of my Lo. presidents owld company, went in the same boat to Corke, & went owt of this harber the 20th, leaving 12 barrels of powder heer.

19 ~~20~~. capten Jephson, with 2 troopes of horse, one for himself, and another for the Lo. of Inchequin, arrived at yoghall, with a great proporcon of powder & Amunison, which the Lo. president expresly comaunded to be all brought henc to corke by sea; but I made staie of the ship & municon in the harber for that thearle of Barrymore Sir p. Smith and others assured me that 500 Rebels laie at Haleboling to intercept it er it cam to corke.

19 ~~20~~. This daie there arrived at yoghall the ship called the James of yoghall, which I sent from hence with 3 barrels of powder, vict[l]s, and provisions to releev the great necesseties of the L. Esmond and his Ma^{ts} fforte of Duncannon (which otherwise had been loste) with chardg from me, when the ffort was supplied, to go to waterford, and to bring from thence all the english that were stript and in great distres in that cyttie; who brought hether from thence my cozen Michaell Boyle, M^{rs} wheeler, M^r Lyn, M^r Bleer, and 332 english in a moste lamentable condicone, whome I in person saw lodged and provided for in my Sowth ab[bey].

21. My Lo. president, the Lo. of Inchequin, Sir Edward denny, and Sir Hardress waller directed their war^t vnto Sireant Maio^r Appleyard, Comaunder of the garrison at yoghall, aucthorizing him to search Sir Robert Tynts castle in yoghall, and to seiz all his money to pay the soldiers withall; [which they] did, and took from thence 4000^[li] in golde.

24. I graunted M^r Isack Thornberry, Collector of his Ma^{ts} customes at Mynhead, licens to carry into england ffowre tonnes of Tallow which he bought of M^{rs} Hazard; and I delivered him one hundreth in ready money vppon his bill to paie it to my servant, Thomas Murrey, at my howse of Stalbridge.

29 ~~29~~. Thofficers of the port of yoghall this daie made seizure of 273^{li} of the moneis of John crockforde, of Capouquin, as it was in the cocke boat going towards the ship wherin his wife was to take passadg therwith into Englande. Thofficers pretended to a thirde part therof as due by the statute for their seizure. The moneys I causd to be brought to me, promising them what part thexchequer should order them. But Georg Barnes, one of the waiters, as they were bringing vp the moneis vnto me conveighed 93^{li} therof into the keeping of david Blaney, clearck, who moste peremptorely denied the delivery therof; whervppon I comitted them both, and the other wayters searched Blaines, & found 73^{li} therof in a close stool; but the seale of the bagg was broken vp, 20^{li} taken owt, and it now sealed with another seal & other wax. But I being to send them prizoners by sea to dublin by my cozen, Josua Boyle, Barnes brought the 20^{li}, whervppon my self, thearle of Barrymore and Sir peercie Smyth 3 Justices of the peace, sent our warrant to the Maior requiring him to continew their restrient till they had fownd good security for their aperance at the next assizes, and to be of good behavior in the mean tyme; and my cozen Josua, 6 Ap^r departed without them.

29 ~~29~~. I provided for the guarding of Sir Robert Tynts Castle of cahirmona eight english soldiers, and lent will Tynt 2 muskets and one spanish peec with a sma[^l]hawnce, two of which I redeemed from a smit[h] who had fitted them vp for Ewstace Roc[he, who is] the preest : and I lent [line and a half worn off. —G.]

Aprill 1642.

20 1. M^{rs} wheeler, late wife to the Lo. Bicshop of ossorie, being Robd by the Rebels, and driven into this harbor with neer 300 english that were stripd at waterford, I lent her x^{li} on her bill to repaie it georg Helliari at Bristoll ; and directed M^r Heliari to receav it of her and deliver it to Sir John Leek, to bear his & his Ladies chardges to London, vppon his faithfull promise to deliver it to M^r Perckins within 3 daies after his coming thither. And I also appointed Sir John to receav in London for a whole yeeres Rent of Rootes, his farme of Ballykeely, xxxij^{li}, and to pay it to M^r W^m Parckins, and parckins to receave of M^r Burlemachies frend, M^{rs} ffynche, ij^{li} which I lent her, in all 45^{li}, to be allowed M^r Perkins vppon thaccompt between vs.

7. I sent my cozen Josua Boyle to dublin from yoghall by sea, with lettres to the Lords Justices to bestow vppon him, W^m Lewis, his office of collector of the customes of this town, (wherof I had procured for him to be made Recorder of yoghall,) and I gaue him order to receave all my arrears and Rents in and neer dublin ; of M^r Rickesses 1014^{li}. 18^s due by his bond, and 27^{li}, being the remayn of the bill of exchange of M^r whetcombe, of Kinsale, assigned me by Adam waringe ; of Sir Arthure Loftus 750^{li} that I 5 yeares lent him gratis in redy money ; 42^{li} for Rent due from Thomas Cole ; 124^{li} from Sir Adam Loftus, which he hath in his hands to dischargd Sir Thomas Buttons debt to me ; lettres to the Lo. ffitzwilliams to paie the 1700^{li} he owes me vppon my mortgage of Meryann ; lettres to Sir John Berlacie to pay him 33^{li}. 15^s for the Rent of Skyddies castle, in corke; Lettres to the L. Robert dillon to pay him 200^{li}, with thencrease which his Lo^p and his son James gaue their bond to Arthure Champen in truste to my vse for. 750^{li}.

9. paid to Henry Banberry and others for recovering owt of the sea 556 barrs delivered of my Iron; the lighter that brought it from my ffordge being svnck in the Harber, xiiij^{li}. v^s. vj^d. The other lighter with ten Tonnes of my Iron that was then caste away was never heard of. I haue consented that John crotty shalbe my tennant [of] Ballynasag[ga]rt at the same Rent phillip Hoarre paid.

9 20. I gaue order to M^r walley to paie M^r Henry Rossington x^{li} in part of the lx^{li} my son dongarvan hadd of him in england which he chardged on me by his bill of exchangd; thother 50^{li} to be allowed in M^r Rossingtons arrears & Rent.

9. I took bonds of George Barnes, one of the waiters of the porte of yoghall, who with other the waiters had seized on 273^{li} of John crockfords of Capoquin his moneis, for that his wife was going on shipboord with it, to carry it into England without licens; and I requiring them to bring the money vnto me to be kept deposited, till it should be adiudged a lawfull seizure & forfeited by decree in thexcheqr. The rest brought in what they had therof, but Barnes conveighed about C.^{li} therof to M^r david Blany, curate of yoghall, and they both combyned together to deteign it, and steal away into England therwith; when I demaunded the bringing the moneis vnto me they both peremp-torely denyed it, ffor which I comitted them bothe to the marshall, and cawsed search to be made for the moneis, and it was fownd in a close stool; but M^r Blany had broken vp the seale and taken owt 20^{li} therof, and new sealed vp the bagg with another seale; which 20^{li} cowld not be gotten from him, till I was sending him by my cozen Josua boyle, by ship, prisoner to dublin; and to prevent his sending thither, the 20th was also brought vnto me. Then my self, Thearle of Barrymore, by our Joint warrant as 3 Justices of the peace comaunded the Maior and Bayliffes of yoghall to continew Blaines restraint till he fownd sufficient suerties for his good behavior, and to appeer at the next Assizes; and the Maior hath taken bayle of him. Then by Josua Boyle I certefied the whole estate of this busines to the Lords Justices & councell, who ordered me to restore John Crockford all his money, which I did vppon his receipt; and therowt he gaue 20^{li} to Josua Boyle for his Journey to dublin and for sollicitacon; 20^{li} to capⁿ ffynches foot Company; 20^{li} to capⁿ Jollyffes Company.

20. Me: that vppon my sute I obtcynd for my cozen Josua Boyle the office M^r W^m Lewys had of being collector of the Kings customes of [yog]hall with [torn out.—G.] ffee per annum.

September 1642.

1. My sons dongarvan and Broghill with their troopes, Sir John Brown, captens St. Leger, Thornton, dowse, and Serieant Maior Appleyardes ffoot companies, departed yoghall this day, vppon the comaund of the Lo. Inchequin, who by his lettres to my son of dongarvans required alsoe the Serieant Maior comyng from his comaund of yoghall, leaving me one company to guard the Town and harber, but my company, comaunded by Leef-tenant cade in Capⁿ finches absence; and but 5 barrels of powder, and 40 skeanes of match; whervppon for the safety of yoghall, I was enforced to send to Tallagh for halfe Capⁿ Jolliffs company to guard yoghall.

2 20. The 560^{li} which the parliament sent over to pay my two Companies for 4 monethes, begining the firste of march, 1641, and ending the laste of June, 1642, (also 25^{li} that I had paid them for 5 daies at the begining of marche till the vjth, and other 20^{li} that I had lent them, viz., to eache companie 10^{li}, in all 45^{li} being abated and repaide me) being fully paid them, and no money sent over for the Capⁿ and officers, I gaue the 40^{li} I had from crockford, of Capoquin, amongst the officers; and haue this day sent capⁿ Jolliff x^{li} and haue laid by other x^{li} for capⁿ ffynche. And this 20^{li} for the two Capⁿ is to be taken owt of the 50^{li} which M^r ffownteyn is to pay me to make vp the 4 mo[n]ethes pay to be full 610^{li}: So there wilbe 30^{li} in remayu with me; which 30^{li} I haue, vppon M^r Nichas Loftus his [lettres], paid vnto my Lady Coke her man.

20 3. to be paid Tho. Badnedg in Londo[n] to [be] bestowed in 200 mvnico[n] illegible word.—G.] soldiers.

3. This daie, being satterday, at the battle fought by the Kinges fforces with the Lordes and Rebels of mownster at Liscarroll in the countie of Corke, where the Lo. of Inchequin comaunding in cheeff, my 4 sons being personally in that ser-
20 vice, yt so pleased god that my second son, the Lo. viscount Kynalmeaky, was with a muskett shot killed on horseback, and lies buried at Lismoor churche: six of the Rebels ensignes carried to his widdoe.

8. Lent cornett W^m fenton v^{li}.

15 20. This day M^{rs} Mabell ffitzgerald delivered vp her husbands castle of drom anry to the Rebels, gerrott and his brother Morres being heer with me in yoghall; whervppon I sent 12 musketteers to guard Tamplemighell.

16. My cozen, the widdo Bragg, dyed in yoghall, & M^r W^m Lambe was also buried: she was buried in my chapple in yoghall.

24. one M^r Hopkins, of Bristoll, merchant, Comyng from the Iland in a smale barcque laden with Tobacko, brought hether therin two small brass peeces with their carriadge, somewhat more then halfe a yarde long, each of them weighing both about 200^{lb} weight; which he alfirm'd to me would carry pointe blanke a myle. Those two lyttle gvns he brought home and delivered voluntarelie vnto me, vppon my assurance to restore them vnto him when our warres are ended, or els to pay him in money the vallue of them, which I esteem not to exceed ten pownds ster. I sent them by the gvnnr of yoghall in M^r 20 wrights pynnace to be delivered at Camphier to my son Broghill for the vse of Lismore. But John Roche, gvnnr, loste one of them in the River neer Camphier, ffor which he is to be answerable.

23. I bestowed in charrety on M^{rs} Jones, the widdoe of Abraham Bates, 40^s to carrie her to her brother, the Lorde Harvie, she being strypt, & in great necesseties.

20 29 20. This morning, being Michas daie, it pleased god to call to his mercie, owt of this miserable world, my noble Son in Lawe, Thearle of Barrymore, who sickned at his howse of Castlelyons the 24th of this moneth, and deceased this morning there, wherof my cozen stephen crowe brought me the vnwelcom tydings, and by him I sent my daughter 20^{li} to be bestowed in bringing his boddy to yoghall to be interred in my chapple, and provide 30^{li} more for mowrning stuff for his ffuneralles; his Lo^p being interred with the rights of a soldier the sonday next following in my chapple at yoghall, the Lo. of Inchequyn with veary many other being present.

October 1642.

20. The 23 of October, 1642, The lamentable (and ever to be, by all treu english hearts, lamentable) battaile at Edghill, neer Bandbeary, was fought between the English; His sacred Ma^{ty} being in person in the head of his Armye, and thearle of Essex, generall of the Army of Parliament army, God graunt it may be the laste battaile that ever may be fought between our own nation.

Bicshop, as also of my own secret[a]rie Thomas Langdale; all which five persons haue testefied the sealing and publicacon therof by subscribing their severall names to every of the said three duplicates of my said Testament, which are all 3 close sealed vp with my own Seal of Armes, and delivered to the keeping of those 3 ffrends, viz. one vnto [blank space—G.]

5. M^r James Smyth, of Torrington in devonshier, having between 80^{li} and C.^{li} of my moneis in his keeping, I this daie sent him 20 tons of Barr Iron by the barcque called the william of Biddeforde, which he is to paie me xvj^{li} per ton, for so as he will haue abowt 400^{li} of myne, towards the payment of those 2000^{li} which I ow to Sir John Eppesley, Sir Thomas ffothely & M^r gabriel Eppesly, being the remaine I owe them for the purchase of the mannor of Mastonbigod.

And I haue also sent Sir John Eppesly by M^r John ffownteyn, commissarie of the victuals in yoghall, Roger carews ticquett for the salt samon taken from him to victuall the garrison, and the Lo. of Inchequins ticquett to haue other 32^{li} paid to me for [blot] Tons of Barr iron taken vp by his L. for his Ma^{ty} with Roger carews and my own lettres of attorney to Sir John to receav those moneis, being above 300^{li} of the parliament, and to reteign those moneis with him towards his satisfacon.

5. This daie I despatched my cozen, Josua Boyle, by sea from yoghall to dublin about sondrie my important affairess, and by him I sent close sealed vp a tripartitie parte of my Laste will & Testament engossed in parchment (testefied by the Lo. Bicsshop of Cloyn and others) to the Lo. Justice Parsons, to be by him safely kept during my lyffe, and by him to be published after my decease; ffor which I thanck my good God I am now comfortably prepared.

20 27. The Lord of Inchequin, Comander of this province and the fforces therin, getting neither moneis no[r] victuals owt of England, or from the state at dublin, to paie, or feed the Soldiers of Mounster withall, did pretend to putt what victuals he could gett together into the Soldiers Knapsacks, and to quit the cytties, townes, and province, and lave all to the mercie of the Rebels, and in this his great extreametie he bemovned vnto me his laste resolucon; and I tending his Ma^{ts} Service and the preservacon of the province, promised to prevent that emynent danger, by Supplying him with one thowsand pownds which I gathered together, and borrowed vpp, and this daie delivered it on his Lo^{ps} lettres vnto Sir charles vavator, K^t and barronett, viz, in reddy money at one entire payment 950^{li} ster.; and thother 50^{li} John Langton, my receavor of my Rents of bandonbridge had delivered by order from the Lo. Inchequin vnto Capⁿ [blank space] sentleger, which makes vp in ready money by [me] lent one Thowsand pownd; ffor repayment wherof his Lo^d hathe sent me his ffrste, second, and thirde Tickett charging the repayment therof vpon the publicque ffaith of the parliament and Kingdome of england to Sir John Eppesley, Sir Thomas ffotherleigh, and gabriell Eppesley, the L. of Inchequin: Sir Arthure Hyde & M^r georg cowrtney. [In margin Lord Cork's son writes—" * a 1000 lent to the Lord Inchequin ;" also another illegible note.—G.]

Maye 1643.

9. This ixth daie of May, 1643, I and Addam wear[ing] entred into our Reckning and perclosed our accompts for my ironworcks and stock of my Rent of them; and by his own acknowledgments he rested in my debte 2105^{li}. 18^s. 4^d: In lieu wherof he returned me as he pretended a skattered vncerten stock which could not be viewed or examined, but vpon his credit he conceaved to be vallued at 2351^{li}. 13^s. 10^d, which if it could be given vp and delivered vp vnto me as a warrantable stock, would exceed his debt to me 246^{li}. 3^s. 6^d; which supposed overplus he hath also assigned vnto me to help to make good the rest, soe farr as it will extend. In this stock he returns me towards my satisfacton the woods of donguyllane, bought of the Lorde of Kilmallock, [which] are putt vpon me for 1300^{li}, which if the tymes were peaceable were no deer bargay[n], for there is 8000 tons of Tymber, which will Sell Standing for 4 or 4^s. vj^d the Ton; the barck would yeald in ~~20~~ place 400^{li}, and the woods would maynteyn my worck with cole neer ten yeares. I haue this daye made a new contract with Addam wearing to keep my worcks a now going, least they should be robbed, or for want of vse fall to decaie; our agreement being that I am to allow him growing wood, and sowe iron, and he is to be at the chardge and care of cutting, coaling, and all other chardges and payments whatsoever as well ordenarie as extraordinary, till it be made good and perfect barr iron, and then freely given vp by weight into my store howse at Kilmackee, I paying for all chardges, worckmanship, and reparacons of my workes, watercourses, and tooles and all other wages, chardges, and demaunds whatsoever, for every Ton of merchantable barr iron soe to be made and delivere[d] me, three pounds twelve shillings ster: and no more.

20 28. This Sondaie morning, about 2 of the clock, 200 Rebels with a partie of horse (in Revendg that my son ffrances with the fforces of Lismoor had the frydaie sevenight before taken, plundered, & burned the town of clogheen, and brought a priest and Luke Everard, and onother of that name, with one M^r English the ffreeholder of Rochestown prisoners home with him). ffor want of good watch, they secretly, before it was day, entred the town of Lismoor, burnt moste of the thatched howses and cabbens in the town, even to the owt gate of my castle; tooke Brian Cavenagh the portreev, garrett ffitz Ewstace Roch, my Serieant John o doiean, and two soldiers away with them prisoners; burnt my Almes howses; killed Morrice Roche and owld pollard, being two of my Almesmen, and about 60 of my irishe tennants, men, women, and children, and hurte many more, as Peeter Baker and his wife.

20 30. ffrances portingall of yoghall, Burgess, did this daie vppon the wall of yoghall, when I was viewing the lands that I had purchased (of Baltazar portingall) in the heering of the lady smithe, my Cozen doll ffreke, W^m chettle, and others, assure me, that the Tenement in the churche lane newly built vp, and wherin Goodman Eyres the clothier, and now parishe clearck of yoghall, dwelt, was bwylt vppon the wastehowse plott and garden that longe since I purchased from Jasper walsh and James his brother, and that I did after purchase Edward walshes release and confirmacon of; I thervppon demaunded of the said ffrances Portingall who built the said new tenement vppon my Land, and vnder what pretence; he answered that one david walsh that was of the walshes of corke sowld his title vnto it for xvj^d to one of the town, & downt[aghs d]aughter built it. [In margin Lord Cork's son writes—"Touching walshes Land in the colledg Lane."—G.]

June 1643.

3²⁹. Satterdaie the third of June, 1643, Sir charles vavaser with his Regiment of foot, my son ffrances with the troop of horse, gayned with battery, and the sowe (?) the strong castle of cloghleigh in condons cowntrey, and putt all the Rebels therin to the sworde; ffor which good atchivement god make vs all thanckfull.

4. Sunday, 4^o Junij, 1643, after our armye had gayned & burned the castle of cloghleigh, and intending to return with their two peeces of ordenanc to Castle Lyons, 500 horse and 4,000 foot that came to rescue, sett vppon our fforces, kild capⁿ pers Lacie, capⁿ georg Butler, Leeftenant Stanburie, Leeftenant Kent, Leeftenant Rossington, Leeftenant S^t leger, Ensignes Truefdale, Symons, ffoord, Errington; loste 7 of our colours; wounded cornett John Rowell, and our arasse Basilisque, and other iron gun, & all the waggons and carriadges taken: our collonell, noble Sir charles vavaser, capⁿ Rich; ffitz morries, capⁿ wynde, Leftenants palicer, and L. Long (that ran away), Ensignes chaplen, ffitzmorrice, and Bromley all carried away prisoners; 300 comon soldiers kild in the fight, and very manie wounded: god in mercie turn his heavy hand from vs. Capⁿ dashwood and leeftenant S^t leger, Roger carews son in lawe, were also slayn and cornett Rowell sore wounded.

29. Me: that one [of] the three duplicates of my laste will and testament is in the Custodie of Sir W^m parsons in dublin by the delivery of my Cozen Josua Boyle; thother two duplicates therof are [blank space].

Capten Thornton having a ffoot companie of the Regiment of Sir charles vavaser, & being lice[nse]d for 3 monethes to goe into england, staid there longe beyond his prefixed tyme, and being (as it [is] said) very ritch, married there, his companie was by the great favor of Sir charles vavaser bestowed on my son ffrances, who is now made capten of that ffoot company of a hundreth: god bless him therwith.

26. The Rebels, comaunded in cheef by leeftennant generall purcell, with 400 horse and about 4,000 ffoot with their ordenance, compassed my castle and town of cappoquyn; mad batteries at once vppon the castle and marckett place, and made a Violent attempt to gett over thentrenchment and enter the town in severall places therof at once; but capⁿ Hugh croker defended the castle, which received many shotts, the bullets waighing 23^{lb}; and capⁿ W^m Hyde, and capⁿ Tho. Badnedge, with their 2 weak companies, and that part of capⁿ croker [?] foot company that were not in capoquin castle, did so valliantly defend the town and the intrenchments therof, as they repelled the Rebels, and without the loss of any of our soldiers, killed and wounded about 300 of them, many of them being of their cheef comanders and officers, amongst which curstd creu leeftennant collonell Butler, of Ardmaile, that so lately had burned Lismoor, was one; and this Revendg god in mercie gave vs, for cloghleggh, & Lismoor: god Continew his power and protexion over vs. The Rebels at that tyme alsoe somened my castle of Lismoor, & Roger [Carew's] Castle, to be yealded vp vnto them, offering quarter; and we returned them defyançe.

27. The Rebels sommoned my castle of Lismoor & Rog: carewes castle to yeald vppon quarter.

I gaue my servant Thomas Langdale one of my own worne satten sutes, and to my son ffranck a lyninge of a cloke of black vell[v]et to make him a cassock.

I gaue peter Baker after his wife was murthered and himself extreemly wounded, at the burninge of Lismoor, [illegible] and money to releev him, and my own morning cloke, dowblett, and breeches, Etc.

July 1643.

18. This daie the Rebels, leeftennant genrall purcell comand- ing, againe in cheef in Revendg of his former defeat, receaved at capoquin, re-enforced his army to 7,000 foot and about 900 horse, with three peeces of ordenance, and drew againe neer vnto capoquin, and there continewed 4 daies wasting and spoiling the countrey rownd abowt, but attempted nothing of anie consequence. And when the 22th at night, that the L. viscount Muskrie came to the irish army with some addicon of new fforges, they removed from Capoquin in the night before my Castle of Lismoor; and on sonday morning, the 23 of Julie, 1643, they began their battery from the churche to the easte of Lismoor howse, and made a breech into my brew house, which capⁿ Broadripp and my warders, being abowt 150, repaired stronger with earth then it was before, and they shott there till the Thursday 27^o, & never durst attempt to enter the breach: My ordenance and muskett shott from my castle did soe apply them; then they removed their battery to the sowth west of my castle, and continewed beatin[g] against my orchard wall, but never adventured into my orchard, my shott from my 20 turrets did soe continewally beat, and cleer the curteyn of the walle. The 28 of July god sent my 2 sons, dongarvan and Broghill, to land at youghall owt of England, & the 29th they rod to the Lo. of Inchequin, who with our army were drawn to Tallagh and [did] stand there in expectac[on] of collonell Myn with his Regiment from Tymolag, who failed to com, but Inchequin, dongarvan, Broghill, & John pawlett the satterday in thevening, vppon some lettres [of] directions brought over by dongarvan from his Ma^{ty} to [make] a treaty that evening with Muskrie and others; and the s[onday] 30 they agreed vppon a cessacon for six dayes: Mo[nday] laste when they could not enter my howse they rem[oved] their scaling, and withdrew their ordenance and arm[y]: six[teen] barrels of powder, shott, 203 peeces of orde[nance], 201 [of them] killed, and but one of my men, god be praised.

[End of this sheet much torn.—G.]

Auguste 1643.

10. Brian cavenaghe, portreev of Lismoor, having been taken prisoner at the burning of my town, was enlaraged by exchange of another prisoner of theirs, and returning home pillaged and stripped, I gaue him a dowblett, breeches, and stockins, and a new coate made for my own wearing, garnished down before with silver buttons of goldsmithes worck, that I had never worne.

12. I lent Sir W^m Cowrtney, on his bill, v^{li}, by the delivery of W^m Terrie of Corke.

13. I sent as my guifte to Capⁿ Broadrip, v^{li} in money, as alsoe a cloke of myne of black waterford ffreze, lyned thorough with black Tustaffatie, with a ryding coat, dowblet, and breeches, sutable, for defending soe well my castle of Lismoor, when it was beseedged eight daies by the Rebels.

[Pages 391 to 394 blank: on that page, in a clerkly hand, a receipt for a cold—395 blank, 396 five receipts, in clerk's hand, for different ailments, 397 blank, and on 398 the following.—G.]

29 September 1642.

END OF THE DIARY.

NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS.

- Page 1. ‘dissolving’ = ending or withdrawing. Ibid. ‘gowld’ = ‘owld,’ for old, &c., before ; but cf. ‘gold’ below, and ‘gold,’ p. 2. Ibid. ‘5th in gold,’ A generous honorarium. We smile at the quaintness, “to give phisick . . . which he never did.” Ibid. ‘castleshen’ = a townland in the parish of Kilbolane, barony of Orrery and Kilmore, co. of Cork.
- „ 2. ‘ffrancis gait’—The South Gate of Bandon was named “Francis-gate,” in compliment to Francis, Lord Shannon, the Earl of Cork’s sixth son. See vol. ii., p. 401. Ibid. ‘knee and other ship tyber’—See vol. i., pp. 220 and 296.
- „ 3. ‘sithens’ = since. Ibid. ‘Crom’ = Croom, a post town and parish in the county of Limerick, and an ancient estate of the Geraldines ; whence was derived their war-cry, “Crom-a-boo!” = “Croom for ever !” the “motto” of the Dukes of Leinster. Ibid. ‘sewing’ = suing. Ibid. ‘a written book of the Lorde primates sermons’—There has been before mention of some of the illustrious Ussher’s MSS. having come into the possession of the Earl of Cork. Query, notes taken of the sermons by someone, as was then common? Ibid. 'Easter Rents' = Crown and Quit Rents. See next page.

- Page 5. 'John Irish'—We have had frequent mention of this troublesome parson, respecting Ringrone, near Kinsale. Despite his patronymic, he was probably from Somersetshire, where this family name (introduced, doubtless, by some settler from Erin) yet flourishes. See p. 16. Their pedigree is given in the "Visitation of Somersetshire, 1623," page 60 (Harleian Society). Ibid. 'angels' = gold coins so named, ut freq.
- „ 6. 'in full £15,000'—The fine imposed by the Lord Deputy on the Earl of Cork, as we have seen already. Ibid. 'travails'—Travels. Ibid. 'staid' = detained or held.
- „ 7. 'Archdeacon Gwyn'—Arthur Gwynn, M.A., was Archdeacon of Lismore from 1638-1663. (COTTON'S "Fasti," vol. i., p. 184.) "Richard Danyell" was Archdeacon in 1607. Of him, Cotton writes: "He granted a beneficial leave of his preferment to Sir Richard Boyle, and soon afterwards resigned." (Regal Visitation). "Meilerus" [Magrath] was Archbishop of Cashel, 1570-1622. In the latter year he died, aged one hundred years, and was buried in his cathedral, under a monument erected by himself, still in tolerable preservation. In the epitaph are some curious Latin verses, which are cited by Ware in his "History," s. n.
- „ 8. 'pore corn' = por[t]e corn, as before frequently.
- „ 9. 'Sir walter Raleigh'—In a deed between Sir Walter

Raleigh and Mr. Richard Boyle (as the Earl of Cork then was called), bearing date 7th December, 1602, and enrolled in the Irish Chancery, 1 James I., is given a schedule of Raleigh's leases of his different estates in Ireland. Among conveyances of lands are demises of two ploughlands and other lands, 25th February, 31 Elizabeth, to Gwy Toose, of London, skinner; and of four hundred acres, called Ballicollande and Shanykill, 27th February, 30 Elizabeth, to Thomas Salisburie, gent. Ibid. 'Kilmacke' = Kilmacow, vol. i., pp. 175 and 293. Ibid. 'half yeares pencon' = allowance or annuity. See vol. iv., p. 228.

Page 10. 'Mr Alexander Twose'—See pp. 8 and 9.

- „ 12. 'phisicall lawyer'—An odd designation. Ibid. '5000^{li} . . . 1200^{li} for my third and 4th payment of my 6 sub-sedies'—It was well for the Earl of Cork that he was wealthy; but our wonder is that such exorbitant imposts were so submissively endured. Yet historians (so-called) and worshippers of Charles I. take no notice of such iniquities.
- „ 14. 'I consented to submitt all his demaunds'—It was a good trait in the Earl of Cork's character that we ever find him preferring arbitration to legal proceedings. He had small chance of justice from the law as then administered by his bitter enemies.
- „ 15. 'ffiant' = a legal term, as before.
- „ 16. 'Armagh' = Arragh, in the county of Tipperary.
- „ 17. 'my yongest daughter'—This was the "Peggie" of whom we often read, and who was ailing some months before. See p. 1. Sir Randal Clayton resided at Mallow, where is a spa of good reputation, having similar medicinal properties to the Hot Wells, Bristol; and we may suppose that the sick girl was moved hither for change. She was at her death little over eight years of age. Ibid. ‘Skiddies Castle in Cork’—Often mentioned already; see vol. ii., p. 407. Ibid. ‘to paie his companie withall’—Commanders of regiments were in this reign in perpetual straits about pay for the soldiery. “Loans,” sometimes, as in this instance, freely made, but commonly enforced, were constantly resorted to.

Page 18. ‘Symon Gibbons . . . his brother in lawe, Mr Hayman, of Mynhead’—George Hayman, of Minehead, co. Somerset, married, in 1632, Mary, daughter of Simon Gibbons, and of his wife Frances, daughter of Roger Hill, of Poundsford. Ibid. ‘clothier’ = cloth manufacturer. Smiles, in his account of “The Huguenots,” devotes his first chapter to describing the introduction by King Edward I. of Flemish clothworkers into England. They were planted all over the country—in London, Kent, Norfolk, Notts, Devon, Somerset, Yorkshire, Lancashire, and so far north as Kendal, in Westmoreland; and, while they prospered themselves, the English people grew rich with them. “Happy the yeoman’s house,” says Fuller, in his “Church History,” “into which one of these Dutchmen did enter, bringing industry and wealth along with him. Such who came in strangers, within the doors, soon after went out bridegrooms, and returned sons-in-law. Yea, those yeomen in whose houses they harboured soon proceeded gentlemen, gaining great estates to themselves, arms and worship to their families.”

- Page 19. ‘Erasmus Burrowes’—He was of Giltown, county of Kildare, M.P. ; Sheriff of that shire in 1641 ; created a baronet of Ireland, 14th February, 164⁶/₇. From him is descended the present Sir Erasmus Borrowes, Bart. See p. 20.
- „ 21. ‘Ringrove’ = Ringrone. Ibid. ‘brother’ = brother-in-law, so commonly for brevity’s sake.
- „ 22. Sir Thomas Button—A navigator, in 1612, in quest of the North-West Passage. He is mentioned in an early part of the Diary.
- „ 23. ‘Mynnott’ = Minehead, as before. Ibid. ‘Serieants ringe’—FORTESCUE, “De laudibus Legum Angliæ,” tells us that the custom of sergeants-at-law presenting rings on their creation was used in, and probably before, the reign of Henry VI. “Mottoes” were introduced about A.D. 1606, and the giving of inscribed rings is still the usage for all lawyers who are so fortunate as to wear the coif. Of ‘Glanvyle,’ see former note in vol. ii., pp. 385-6.
- „ 24. ‘I lent gratis’ = without rebate on lending, or expecting interest at a future season. This kind disposition of the Earl of Cork should not be passed over in forming an estimate of his character. He was prompt to “do good and lend.”
- „ 25. ‘licens to repaire into England, and staie there without lymittacon of tyme.’—Of the passport system I have already spoken. It is evident from this entry, that not only was there required liberty to leave Ireland

- for England, and vice versa ; but that the period of absence was expressed in what I am tempted to call the "ticket of leave," without, however, its taint as being given to criminals only.
- Page 26. 'the sign being in Leo'—Astrology, as so often previously noted.
- „ 27. 'Seaven Barronies in the County of Tiperary'—There are now twelve Baronies, or Hundreds, in this Shire. Ibid. 'deceitfully' = unsubstantially, with only outward good appearance = jerry work, as the phrase now is.
- „ 29. 'freely'—as frequently noted. The Earl eschewed all simoniacal transactions. Ibid. 'Herriott,' as often before. Here the deceased Vicar's "hackney" passes, as a forfeit, to the Earl of Cork, and is presented by him to his daughter, Lady Barrymore.
- „ 30. 'clonshane in carbry' = Cloonshear, parish of Inchi-geelagh, Carbery East. Ibid. 'clenares' = Cleanrath, in the same parish. Ibid. 'a token,' i.e. of affection; but what 'Kunst' means it is impossible to say. Ibid. 'thadward' = the award.
- „ 31. 'Crom' = Croom, as before. Ibid. 'Katheryne,'—She died a child. I do not understand 'verge,' some abbreviation, perhaps, of a second baptismal name; query, Marga[ret]? Ibid. 'Mr Wisemans . . . widdoe' = Alice, fourth daughter of Sir Richard Smyth, and of his wife, Mary Boyle, sister of the Earl of Cork (vol. ii., p. 394).
- „ 32. 'coolfaddoe' = Coolfadda (Irish, cuil, a corner or retired place; feadha, a calm), a farm in the parish of Kanturk, co. Cork.

- Page 34. ‘carrowmeers’—See vol. ii., p. 375.
- ” 35. ‘Balthazar’—See vol. i., pp. 280, 281. Ibid. ‘attach’ = arrest, a legal term. Ibid. ‘my howse in Yoghall’ = The College of Youghal.
- ” 36. ‘Docter Edward Godwin’—Edward Goodwin, or Godwin, D.D., was, in 1619, made a Prebendary of Cork Cathedral, and, in 1630, a Prebendary of Lismore. He died in 1641. Ibid. ‘Morris vnyack of yoghall’—See vol. i., pp. 76, 155, 284. Ibid. ‘Ballywrghen’ = Ballyvergan, a townland in Youghal parish. Ibid. ‘Baglear’ = Bagbear, a Youghal name.
- ” 37. ‘ffrize’—For Irish frieze, see vol. iii., p. 270. Ibid. ‘donderry Hill’ = Dundry, five miles from Bristol. It stands 790 feet above the level of the sea.
- ” 38. ‘Roger Boyle . . . my poor kinsman’—The Earl of Cork’s kindness to his multitudinous and necessitous cousins was unceasing. Ibid. ‘Josuah Boyle . . . solliciting my affairs at Dublin this Michas term’—He was a lawyer, and from the year 1641 to 1651 was Recorder of Youghal. Ibid. ‘solliciting’ = acting as my solicitor. The lines marking out the two branches of the profession were not so clearly defined then as now.
- ” 39. ‘the Lo. of Inchequin . . . childe is named W^m.’—Murrough O’Brien, sixth Baron of Inchiquin, married Elizabeth, daughter of the President of Munster, Sir William St. Leger, of Doneraile. Hence the christening at “donnaraille,” and the baby being named after his grandfather, St. Leger. This child lived to become second Earl of Inchiquin. (See “Peerage.”)

- Page 40. ‘cowrcies Countrey’ = Barony of Courceys, comprising Kinsale and its neighbourhood, and so called from De Courcey, Baron Kingsale. King Henry II. partitioned Ireland, or so much as had in his reign submitted to English rule, among his knights, and their grants were named after them, with the addition in each case of “country,” i.e. district.
- „ 41. ‘Mockas’ = Moccas, $9\frac{1}{2}$ miles (W.N.W.) from Hereford. Ibid. ‘Letrym’—Not the county of that name, but a parish near Fermoy, co. Cork. Leitrim (Irish, Liath-dhruim, the grey mountain ridge), is a very common Irish place-name.
- „ 43. ‘Sir walter Raleigh . . . cj yeares of Ardmoo,’ &c.—When inquisition was taken at Tallagh, 2 April, 1604, respecting Raleigh’s Irish estates, to which I have already alluded (vol. iv., s. n.), the jury found, among other things, that:—“Thomas Witherhead, formerly Bishop of Waterford and Lismore, was seised of fee, in right of his bishoprick, of the manor of Ardmoo, and of the town and lands of Ballynemony and Crobally, otherwise Crowley, $8\frac{1}{2}$ acres, which, by consent of the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of St. Carthage, otherwise Mowdi [Mochuda] of Lismore, he demised, by a lease dated 15 January, 33rd Elizabeth, to Sir Walter Raleigh for 101 years, at a rent of vi^{li} Irish. Who continued in possession thereof, until ejected by Sir John Dowdall, knight, late of Pilltown, in Waterford county, 17 January, 35th Elizabeth; and said Dowdall still holds the same, but by what right the jury knoweth not. Sir Walter Raleigh was also seised of the manor of Kilbree, with its appurtenances, of which the town and lands of New Aghvane are parcel, and of the Dean's house and garden, and of Temple Christ, and of the town and lands of Ballindeganagh and Ballynesaggard, for several terms of years not yet expired."

Page 44. 'the River of Bandon cleared,' &c.—The Earl of Cork shows himself untiring in the improvement of his estates. This "clearing" was making the river navigable from the sea at Kinsale to the newly founded town of Bandon. Ibid. 'estopels' = obstructions. A legal term (from étouper, French, to stop) signifying an impediment or bar of action, growing from a man's own fact, or doing. I ought to have long ere this alluded to the Earl of Cork's early training for the law, and his consequent familiarity with its phraseology. In his "True Remembrances," as cited by Lodge (Irish "Peerage," vol. i., pp. 151, 152), he wrote of himself:—"After the decease of my father and mother, I being the second son of a younger brother, having been a scholar in Bennet's College, Cambridge, and a student in the Middle Temple, finding my means unable to support me to study the laws in the Inns of Court, put myself into the service of Sir Richard Manwood, Knight, Lord Chief Baron of her Majesty's Court of Exchequer, where I served as one of his clerks." Ibid. 'ship tymler in knees'—See vol. i., pp. 220, 296. Ibid. 'Marten Canty'—We have had already more than once the name 'en canty,' and now we have the full designation.

- Page 45. 'sythes . . . reaping Hooks'—The Earl of Cork's industry continually shows itself. He not only had iron smelted, but manufactured into various useful articles. We had "Tallagh knyves" in vol. ii., pp. 41, 349; and now we have other implements. Ibid. 'doctor parry' = Edward Parry, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, Dean of Waterford in 1637, and of Lismore in 1640; Bishop of Killaloe in 1646. He died of the plague in Dublin, 20 July, 1650. He was author of "David Restored; or an Antidote against the Prosperity of the Wicked and the Afflictions of the Just." This was posthumously published by his son (8vo., Oxford, 1660), with the author's portrait for a frontispiece. Ibid. 'sea capitulaiuter' = See met in chapter. Ibid. 'Sir John Leek'—He is mentioned in vol. ii., pp. 3, 342.
- „ 46. 'goodly resolucon to rebwilde the demolished cathedrall church of Lismoor'—The Earl of Cork was unable to carry out these pious intentions, by reason of public commotions that followed shortly, in the midst of which he died. In a very rare book, "Charls Stuart and Oliver Cromvvel United," by Walter Gostelow, "Printed for the Author, 1665," I find some illustrative passages:—"My business commanded me to Youghill in March following [165 $\frac{2}{3}$], a season more fit for travel and observance. I removed from thence to Lismore, 11 miles off, situate upon the Black-water: A Seat very ancient, and not a little eminent and honourable. Where having well viewed the improvements and good contrivances of the late deceased Earl of Cork, who had there purchased, caused to be built and made many fair and commodious seats; governing in the well mannage of Affairs, as born for the publick good; for so he was communicable to the employ of the poor, to the improve of those Lands, to the good example of others, and to the honour of this Nation. That had not War prevented, and death put an end to his dayes . . . it might be presumed before this time it had in some measure risen again from the ashes, which former wars, I conceive, had buried it in. A very fair and strong built Schole house, with Almshouses on both sides of it, that Earl lived to finish there: and now I believe he really intended to re-build the Church. So that like Him that was a man after God's own heart, in this he followed him, that he loved the place where his Honour dwelleth. And therefore he would so provide for it, that in publick He might be worshipped, and that youth might early be taught the wayes of godliness. Thus being instrumental to well-accomplish them, he might best serve God and his Nation, in being communicably good to all, the end for which we were born."

Page 48. 'the Bath in England'—The use of the definite article as a prefix to the names of localities was introduced, after the genius of their language, by the Anglo-Norman settlers in England. Addison and Sir Richard Steele, in "The Spectator," invariably speak of this city as "The Bath," like The Devizes. In isolated instances, the custom is yet observed.

- Page 49. 'quillet'—See vol. i., pp. 112, 285. Ibid. 'Currykallillagh'—Coolyrahilly, in the parish of Ringrone, near Kinsale.
- „ 50. 'Poynes'—We have had this surname before in the Diary. It is not too late to remind the reader how suggestive it is of Prince Hal, Falstaff, and the other roysterers of Shakspeare.
- „ 51. 'the order of the Table' = Tabling of Fines, a lawphrase, is the making of a table, or schedule, of every fine passed in any one term, for every county where the King's writ runs. [BAILEY.]
- „ 52. 'ffishe ponds at Lismoor'—These reservoirs, in which were stored carp, tench, grayling, and other specimens of the finny tribe, hitherto unknown in Ireland, are not now kept up. Such pretty and interesting adjuncts to a country seat have grown into disuse; and we lament that it should be so. Many good customs, forgotten in our day, might be laudably revived. Ibid. 'refuge' = refuse. Ibid. 'the Lo. Chancellor' = Adam Loftus, Viscount Ely, of whom we have had so much mention. On his removal from this high office, the King, by patent 25 May, 1638, committed the keeping of the seal to Robert, Lord Dillon, Sir Adam Loftus, Vice Treasurer, Sir Christopher Wandesforde, Master of the Rolls, and Sir Philip Mainwaring, Secretary of State; and, by privy seal, 6 December, 1639, he appointed Sir Richard Bolton to be Lord Chancellor of Ireland.
- „ 53. 'ffearmors' = lessees. Ibid. 'exhibicon' = income. Ibid. 'parson way'—Thomas Way was vicar of Scull [= schola, for a great seminary existed there in olden times], diocese of Cork, 1615-1640. In the Regal Visitation of 1634, I read: "Rec-toria de Scoole spectat ad Coll. de Youghall. Valor xxx^{li} per annum. Comes Corke, patronus. Vicarius ibidem Thomas Way." Ibid. 'failer' = failure.

- Page 54. 'Ned Stowt . . . Rathnolan'—He resided at Youghal, of which town he was Mayor, A.D. 1627. Rathnolan is in the parish of Ardagh, a few miles from Youghal. Ibid. 'Barries great Iland' = Great Island, in Cork river and harbour, noted as the site of Queenstown.
- „ 55. '9 new fishe pondes at Lismoor'—See former notices and full Life. Ibid. 'take my forney into England . . . did make a new laste will and testament'—A common practice, almost reaching to our own day, on account of the perils of the deep, and, in Lord Cork's day, of corsairs. Ibid. 'conscionable' = trustworthy or reliable.
- „ 56. 'cnogher' = Connor. Ibid. 'kneeves' = gneeves, as so often before. Ibid. 'Kilmoyliry' = Kilmoylerane, parish of Desertserges. Ibid. 'Kilmighell' = Kilmichael, parish of Templebrady. Ibid. 'Curryhally' = Coolyrahilly, parish of Ringrone—all in the county of Cork.
- „ 57. 'came by boat to Ballynetra'—They must have made a goodly company on this lovely river, the Blackwater ("the Irish Rhine," as it is called); and we follow them in imagination down its windings until they land at Ballynatray, a distance of about sixteen miles. A king's ship, the "9 whelp," awaits the Earl of Cork and his party in the harbour of Youghal. They embark that evening, and go to rest; but the morrow brings disappointment, for they are "wyndebownd." Next day (Thursday) they set sail, and on Saturday they are safe in the King's Road, Bristol. Ibid. 'salt' = salt cellar. Ibid. 'my own house in Stalbridge in dorsetsbier'—Stalbridge is on the borders of Somersetshire, about $7\frac{1}{2}$ miles easterly from Sherborne, so fraught with memories of Sir Walter Raleigh. We have had in the "Diary" particulars of the Earl of Cork's purchase of this manor, and he now made it his chief place of residence for more than three years. See full Life, as before, for a most interesting paper drawn up by the Earl of Cork for the "Government of his household" at this residence.

- Page 58. 'the Bathe' = Bath, as before. Ibid. 'Badmenton' = Badminton, near Chipping Sodbury. Ibid. 'Hobby' = mare. Ibid. '30 peecs'—I suppose its price suggested its curious name.
- „ 59. 'Chapple' = Chaplen of p. 58. He was a stepbrother of Simon Gibbons, and hence their intimacy. Frances, daughter of Roger Hill, of Poundsford, near Taunton, was married first to Thomas Chaplin, by whom William Chaplin; and, secondly, to Simon Gibbons, of Minehead, by whom Simon Gibbons, with other issue.
- „ 60. 'earnest' = pledge. Ibid. 'coppiehowld grounds' = "A tenure, for which the tenant hath nothing to show but the Copy of the Rolls made by the steward of his lord's court." [COWELL.] The Earl of Cork is strong in law terms.

- Page 61. 'Robert carew . . . his man that brought over his harpe?'—Whence? The Carews were not only a Devon house, but were established in Ireland, particularly in Wexford and Waterford counties. It would appear that the harp came from Ireland. See Introduction. Ibid. 'All hollenday laste'—All hallow Eve, or Hallow E'en, October 31st.
- „ 62. 'Hannabeel = Hannibal. See vol. ii., p. 355.
- „ 64. [November 23-26, 1638.] We have here another interesting reference to Robert Boyle. He has now completed three years at Eton, and his father goes thither for him. The Earl of Cork brings him to Stalbridge along with his brother Francis, and in a few days places them with a private tutor. Mr. Dowch (called 'dowck,' in p. 77 = Duck, an established family name in the western shires, and found in the "Visitations of Devonshire," 1564 and 1620), with whom they remain for twelve months (p. 113). I shall take up his story a little further on.
- „ 65. 'Thomas Cross' = the Steward at Stalbridge, and to whom the "Form" for governing the household was addressed, for which see full Life. Ibid. 'the furniture of my Sons chamber at Eaton.'—The usage, therefore, at this period was for students to furnish their own apartments. Ibid. 'sign of the grasshopper.'—We have memories here of Sir Thomas Gresham.
- „ 66. M^r Hayman of Mynhead's son = George Hayman

- (see p. 130), "married to Symon Gibbons' daughter" (p. 116).
- Page 67. 'Reward' = douceur to messenger. Ibid. 'Ranger-pavies' = tiles [rangée, French, "things placed in a line"]. "Hee is to dig, and lay those stones even, neatly even and worckmanlike in all respects."
- „ 68. 'Marnell' = Marnhull, two miles from Stalbridge. When I name Purbeck and Portland, I need hardly add that the quarries of Dorset are among the finest of the kingdom. Ibid. 'close' = an enclosed field. Ibid. 'Mynnyett' = Minehead, written phonetically ut freq.
- „ 69. 'the practice of piety.'—I notice every book mentioned by the Earl of Cork. This is still a quick book.
- „ 72. 'my perfidious kinsman' = Richard Boyle, D.D., Warden of Youghal College, in 1602; Dean of Waterford in 1603; Archdeacon of Limerick in 1605; Bishop of Cork in 1620; and Archbishop of Tuam, 1638-164 $\frac{1}{2}$, when he died, March 19th. His "perfidy" was in the matter of the College of Youghal, in the great suit of the Deputy Wentworth against the Earl of Cork. Ibid. 'Egglishe' = AGLISH, from Ecclesia. This, with the other benefices to which the Earl of Cork now presented incumbents, is in the diocese of Lismore and county of Waterford.
- „ 73. 'my Lo. of Clандebwie' = Sir James Hamilton, created Viscount Clандeboy in May, 1622. His son and successor, James Hamilton, was advanced to the Earldom of Clanbrassil, 7 June, 1647. See more of the latter in p. 101, where he is "refuzed in marriage by my vnruly daughter Mary," writes the Earl of Cork.

Page 76. 'a cook, my apprentice . . . a poor ragged boye'—The "apprenticing" of servants is yet kept up. I find here fresh evidence of the Earl of Cork's tenderness of heart for the poor.

„ 77. 'Cane apple trees'—See vol. ii., p. 418 = Espalier trees, trained upon ranges of trellis, or against walls. Ibid. 'Harvie' ? = hardy. Ibid. 'Bon-critheens & Burgomyes' = "Bon-Chrétien" and "Bergamot." See Mawe's "Every Man his own Gardiner" (p. 671, edition 1813).

„ 78. 'The Reedifying of Pawles churche in London'—In 1632 a subscription, that finally amounted to £100,000, was entered into for the repairs of St. Paul's Cathedral, and the works were placed under the superintendence of Inigo Jones. These were yet in progress when the Civil War broke out, and straightway suspended them. They were resumed after the Restoration, and were vigorously prosecuted between the years 1663-1666. The great fire of London commenced 2 September, 1666, and the grand old Cathedral utterly perished in it. Ibid. 'his warres in Scotland'—It was in Scotland that warlike opposition to the King was destined to commence. From the beginning of his reign Charles I. had endeavoured to introduce into that country a liturgy copied from the English—an innovation which produced the most violent tumults—culminating in 1638 in the formation of the celebrated "Covenant," by which all classes of the people engaged to stand by each other. The Covenanters levied an army, which the King opposed by an English force ill-disciplined, and moreover so equivocally inclined that, not able to trust to it, Charles agreed to a pacification. Lord Cork's conduct is noble. His son-in-law, Lord Goring, without his privity, undertook to raise and equip a troop of a hundred horse, and he now, for his part, promises to furnish Goring with £1,100 to meet the charges.

- Page 79. 'thearle of Barrymore . . . a Regiment vnder thearles comaund'—An Irish regiment of 1,000 men. I note not only the expression "raise," but also "press." This is an early allusion to enforced service of the Crown.
- „ 83. 'scallops'—See vol. ii., p. 351. Ibid. 'gossop' = a good old designation, now fallen in its worth; "God-ship," or gossip = godfather, or godmother, was a baptismal sponsor.
- „ 84. 'Coat of Armes compleate'—The Earl of Cork was fond of placing up these Family Ensigns. See vol. i., pp. 76, 284. They are to be seen at Lisimore and Youghal, as fresh as when erected by him; and it were interesting to learn whether they are yet to be found in the manor house of Stalbridge, with any of the "12 ffygures" or statues (Pallas included) on the staircase.
- „ 85. 'armors of proff'—Armour was yet in use; but, as the fire of musketry was improved, it was found to be useless, and was gradually laid aside. Napoleon revived the cuirass for his horsemen; and this piece of defensive armour is still worn by heavy dragoon regiments. Ibid. 'cluett' = Bluett. Settlers at Youghal from Devon bore this name.

- Page 86. 'the Islandes of the Blask[ites]'—See vol. ii., p. 382.
- „ 88. 'arrived at Mynhead out of Ireland'—Minehead, lying opposite to Cork and Youghal, was a favourite port to and from Ireland at this time. The run across the Channel, with a westerly wind, was generally accomplished in twenty-four hours.
- „ 89. 'the two foots' = men of that name, previously mentioned. "Foote" is a Dorset patronymic.
- „ 92. 'my bwilding at Gill Abbey, neer Cork'—This religious house was originally called "Antrum Sancti Fion Barrie," as having been founded by that eminent man in the seventh century. It was restored in 1134, and was about that time, or soon after, denominated "Gill Abbey," from Gilla Aeda O'Mugin, who was Bishop of Cork at the period. No vestiges of this Abbey now exist; but its site was on the rising ground, near to the Queen's College. Some interesting tombstones were lately discovered in this place, and are carefully preserved.
- „ 93. 'the Lo. of cahir' = Thomas Butler, fifth Baron Cahir. Ibid. 'my Lo. Archbischop of canterbury' = Laud.
- „ 94. 'Barwack' = Berwick-on-Tweed. Ibid. 'curbyunny' = Curraghbinny, a townland in Currigaline parish, co. Cork. See page 128.
- „ 95. 'M' W^m dowch, parson of stalbridge' = his son's private tutor, of whom already. Ibid. 'drev' = Dier, or Dyer, a Youghal name, already mentioned.

- Page 96. ‘an honorable peace with the scotts’—This is worded euphemistically; for Charles had no alternative but to make a compromise. Ibid. ‘Tyntenhull, neer Evill’ = Tintinhull, near Yeovil, Somerset. “Y,” at the commencement of place-names, is a vowel, and is sounded as in French.
- „ 97. ‘W^m dampeer’—A Somerset gentleman; and (it may be) progenitor of William Dampier, the celebrated navigator, who was born in that shire, A.D. 1652.
- „ 99. ‘The prince elector,’ viz., of the German Empire = George, who attained this rank in 1609, and died in 1640.
- „ 100. ‘Sir Robert Tynt’ = fifth son of Edmund Tynte, of Wroxhall, Somerset; and already connected with the Earl of Cork’s family by his marriage, 3 March, 161 $\frac{2}{3}$, (vol. i., p. 8), with Spenser’s widow, Elizabeth (née Boyle). The alliance is now carried into the succeeding generation.
- „ 101 ‘my unruly daughter, Mary’—This is hastily penned by the Earl, in his chagrin. The Lady Mary Boyle had not, at the time, completed the fifteenth year of her age; and ought not to have had nuptials pressed upon her so soon. She was married, a few years after, of her own free will and choice, to Charles, fourth Earl of Warwick; and the reader of her Autobiography and Letters will ever hold her memory precious and fragrant.
- „ 102. ‘a Ball of cowntry yeartar’ = cordials. See p. 123.
- „ 103. ‘onely give thearle 2000^{li},’ &c.—The Royal impecuniosity is here strikingly illustrated, ut freq.

- Page 104. 'thearle of Bristols'=Sherborne Castle, erected by Sir Walter Raleigh, and now the residence of Sir John Digby, Earl of Bristol. A previous invitation will be found in p. 58 of this volume.
- „ 105. 'two severall lettres,' &c.—These royal epistles were successful, and the suggested marriage took place soon after. See an account of it in p. 112. But we are amazed, if aught indeed of the King's conduct could amaze us, with such interference in family-arrangements.
- „ 106. 'his bill of exchange.'—Our bank drafts, so easily obtained, have relieved us from the difficulties which our ancestors experienced in their transmission of money. Ibid. 'Mynthhead'= Minehead, ut freq.
- „ 107. 'the church Lane of Yogball'= Church Street, at present. Ibid. 'Kilhouse'= kiln-house, query, for drying corn? Ibid. 'My sons daughter Katherryne'= second daughter of Richard, Lord Dungarvan. Ibid. 'This Thursday being the xix of 7ber, 1639'—We have here an important reference to Robert Boyle, namely, his leaving for London, with his brother Francis, on their foreign travels (p. 115). Their "governor" is Marcombes, already mentioned frequently. He was a native of Geneva, and for this reason made it their destination. One would be glad to know the name even of "their ffrench servant," written by their father "shannowey" phonetically, but intended for Jean []. They are to embark at Rye for Dieppe, and thence proceed to Geneva.

- Page 108. 'Robin' = pet name for Robert. We learn that so the Earl of Cork familiarly called this, his illustrious son. Ibid. 'my cozen, Josua boyle'—Of him see previous mention in these annotations. Being in Ireland at this time, he was able to transact much business for the Earl of Cork, who reposed great confidence in him.
- „ 109. 'exhibicon' = allowance. See p. 122. It is used now as a College phrase, signifying an endowment.
- „ 110. 'howskeeping at Stalbridge'—The Ladies Barrymore and Dungarvan were inexcusable for their extravagance; for their father's provision for their house-keeping was almost lavish. Ibid. 'powdred' = salted. The powdering-tub, or meat-barrel, is a term not yet gone into disuse; 'bauking' = balking or outwitting?
- „ 111. 'My Jorney to London'—Here again is to be noted what travelling was in the reign of the first Charles. Stalbridge is about one hundred and eleven miles from the metropolis, and the travelling occupies four days of nearly equal proportions: (1) to Salisbury, (2) to Basingstoke, (3) to Egham, (4) to London. Ibid. 'the queens Ma^y . . . her lettres.—It was, then, Queen Henrietta that chiefly made up the marriage of her maid of honour with the Earl's son, Francis.
- „ 112. These ceremonies of marriage are interesting; but a portion of them would hardly accord with the feelings of our own day. I have read of royal nuptials in France of the same period, when like usages (even to the 'vndressing') were gone through. Ibid. ‘My sons ffances and Robert Boyle’—The youths are now fairly on their travels, “having his Ma^{ts} licence vnder his hand and privy signett for to continew abroad 3 yeares.” The ‘Cowntess of denbigh’ (pp. 111, and here, and elsewhere) has a nimbus of unpaling lustre around her memory from the exquisite poem of Richard Crashaw (see his complete Poems in “The Fuller Worthies Library” 2 vols.).

- Page 113. ‘victoria’—This occurrence of a name so dear to all loyal subjects must not pass unnoticed. Ibid. Barry als m^r Adam of Rathcormyck’—He was of the noble house of Barrymore, of a branch calling themselves “Mac Adam” for distinction’s sake, and now represented by “Barry of Ballyclogh.” See BURKE’S “Landed Gentry,” s. n.
- „ 114. ‘Et a halfer’ = year and a half. Ibid. ‘a bowling green’ = a customary appanage to a country house, at this time. ‘halfer’ = halves. Ibid. ‘Bugbear’ = Bagbeare, as before.
- „ 115. ‘ffances and Robert Boyle’—We follow them in their journey, and note their arrival at Dieppe, 31st October, 1639. Ibid. ‘did Xten the childe . . . and named him Charles’—This custom has been explained, vol. ii., p. 392, and is here further illustrated.
- „ 116. ‘Ronlets of vsebagh’—See vol. ii., p. 414.
- „ 117. ‘pale’ = territorial division, so designated. Ibid. ‘the chancellor was put from thoffice of chancellor’—Lord Ely’s removal was legally carried into effect by a Letter of Privy Seal, Westminster, 6th December, 1639, appointing Sir Richard Bolton as his successor. Ibid. 'my son Robert Boyle'—The advowson of Rathcormyck, or Rathcormac, is here settled on him. The 'Nota' is valuable that, along with his brother Francis, he arrived 28th November, 1639, at Geneva. Their travelling was costly, even allowing for there being five in the company. Ibid. 'to give him a Xtian name'—See annotation to page 115, and refer to vol. ii., p. 392.

- Page 118. 'tenared unto me thearle of Annandales his son and heire'—Almost with Eastern usage, fathers of this age provided husbands for their daughters. Negotiations began with the elders before those most concerned were made acquainted with their coming destiny.
- „ 119. 'married in the Kings chapple'—The incidents of this marriage are quite similar to what we have had in p. 112. Ibid. 'Revelling' = pastime, acting plays, masquerading; not necessarily doing evil.
- „ 120. 'two balles of her cordiall'—We have had such presentations mentioned already. "Cordial" is commonly understood to mean some kind of liqueur; but with the Earl of Cork it was evidently some eatable, perhaps a confection. Ibid. 'a book of Sermons, called the seules = soul's conflict.' By the saintly Dr. Richard Sibbes, whose 'Works' were for the first time collected and edited by the present editor in Nichol's "Puritan Divines," in 6 vols. 8vo. See the 'Memoir' prefixed. Ibid. 'bale' = a packet. Ibid. 'vocall wife'—Query, "Valentine," as often before? Ibid. 'to demaund their christmas offering—These “vails,” or perquisites, were seemingly expected from the nobles that had attended the Court.

- Page 121. ‘created Barron of Rabye and Earle of strafforde’— Alas! for human mutability. A few pages more in this Diary, and we have Wentworth mounting the scaffold on Tower Hill. Ibid. ‘The Lorde Coventry’—Lord Clarendon bears like testimony to his worth. “He discharged all the offices he went through with great abilities and singular reputation of integrity. His place of Lord Keeper he enjoyed with universal reputation (and sure, justice was never better administered) for the space of about sixteen years, even to his death.” Ibid. ‘avoyded’ = voided, went out of.
- „ 122. ‘Mr Marcombes’ = travelling tutor of Francis and Robert Boyle. Their allowance (or “exhibicon,” as it is called likewise), we learn from this paragraph, is to be £500 per annum.
- „ 123. ‘my wives Taylor’—See vol. ii., p. 370. Ibid. ‘beazer’ = Bezoar. See vol. i., p. 285.
- „ 124. ‘for bwilding a howse for my son Robert at ffermoy’—Every notice of him is of interest. Here we have the Irish residence for Robert Boyle, prepared by his father. Ibid. ‘boats to be lefte at ffermoy’—We learn from this that, in the Earl of Cork’s time, the Blackwater was navigable between Fermoy and Lismore. It is not so now.
- „ 125. ‘lyttle grace’ = a small townland in the parish of Knockmourne, barony of Barrymore, co. Cork.
- „ 126. ‘the owld colledg howse in the churche lane in yoghal’—

When, in 1640, letters patent were passed, confirming the College of Youghal and its appurtenances to the Earl of Cork, and to the persons in trust for the jointure of the Lady Elizabeth Clifford, wife of Lord Dungarvan, his son and heir—which patent was also a full discharge to the Earl and his tenants for all issues and profits arising thereout—the House, called “The Old College House,” and its appurtenances, were reserved by the King for the incumbent and his successor for ever. Not a vestige of this mansion is in existence; but about midway in the Church Lane, on the southern side, is a piece of ground, once, no doubt, its site. For, on the surrender by the Earl of Cork, 27th June, 1637, of the College with its advowsons, the Crown granted the rectory of Youghal with wardenship of the College to the Bishop of Cloyne, “ratione tenuitatis Episcopatus,” along with this plot of ground and the dwelling-house thereon.

Page 127. ‘purchazed a licens . . . for my self, & xj more to eat ffleshe this lent’—Abstinence from flesh was required by law in England, in post-Reformation times, not only on religious grounds, but for reasons of State policy, and to encourage fisheries, e.g., King Edward VI., soon after his accession, issued a proclamation, bearing date 16th January, 154 $\frac{8}{9}$, and commanding his lieges “to spare flesh, and use fish, for the benefit of the commonwealth and profit of his Majestie’s realm, whereof many fishers, and men using that trade of living unto the which this realm on every part environed with the seas, and so plentiful of fresh waters, doth easily minister occasion." Dispensation, or leave to eat flesh, was committed to the Archbishop of Canterbury; and the sums paid for such permission were by him distributed among the poor. In Archbishop Parker's "Correspondence" we have numerous applications made to him for such licence. Sir William Cecil writes to him, 27th Feb., 1559-60, for Sir Roger North, son and heir of Lord North, "in consideration of his evil estate of health." Again he writes to him, 23rd February, 1562 $\frac{2}{3}$, on behalf of Baron de la Ferte, a hostage for the French king; again, 27th February of same year, on behalf of Lord of Lethington, ambassador from the Queen of Scots. But I need not multiply such instances. In country parishes, the licence to use flesh was granted by the rectors severally; and the payment was brought into the parish accounts. In those of Allhallows, Barking, is this acknowledgment:—"February 16, 1635. Rec^d of Sir William Russell, Knight, for a lycense to eat flesh during lent, xiiij^s iv^d." In the Lacebey parish register is the following memorandum:—"That the xiiij of October, 1661, a license to eat flesh on fish days was granted by the Rector to a parishioner, who was weak and visited with a quartian ague." "I have myself," writes a correspondent of "Notes and Queries," February 28th, 1863, "witnessed an example of its observance in the Scotch kirk within the last twelve years."

- Page 129. 'his godlie and Religeows brother'—This is surely ironical; for it will be remembered that the Archbishop of Tuam was "perfidious" in the Earl of Cork's estimation.
- „ 130. 'payment of one thousand pounds ster : to George Hayman, of yoghall . . . M^r Robert Hayman, of Mynehead'—The Earl of Cork had large money transactions with these gentlemen. This sum would probably represent five times as much again of our currency.
- „ 131. 'my proxie'—Proxies were available for members of the House of Peers until lately. Absent noblemen, according to their politics, placed their votes either in the hands of the leader of the House of Lords or of the Opposition.
- „ 133. 'my neec Katherine Boyle . . . Tynt'—This further intermarriage of a Boyle with a Tynte is to be noted. See Introduction. Ibid. 'graie coot = gray colt, or "Coote," like "purdam" [purdon], from the person who perhaps sold it.
- „ 134. 'commander of a troop of a hundred horse against the Scottes'—Hostilities with Scotland were being resumed by the infatuated king.
- „ 135. 'ffactor' = agent. Ibid. 'a poor gentlewoman.' I find here another proof of the Earl of Cork's merciful disposition. Ibid. 'The Lo. Marques Hamilton' = James, third Marquess of Hamilton, He was succeeded in the title by his brother, William, from whom comes the present Duke of Hamilton.
- „ 136. 'the parliament was dissolved . . . it having continewed but 3 weeks, and one day'—It is, on this account, known in history as the Short Parliament. The Houses met in a mood which gave hopes of an accommodation with the Crown; but the Commons declared, as before, that redress of grievances must precede the grant of supplies. Even an offer to relinquish ship-money failed to draw them from their resolution; and, in the brief period above mentioned, the Houses were dissolved.

- Page 137. ‘thearle of Bristoll . . . brother-in-lawe, Mr John Walcott’—Sir John Digby, Earl of Bristol, married Beatrice, daughter of Charles Walcot, of Walcot, Salop.
- „ 139. ‘My daughter Marie . . . I haue . . . deteigned my promised allowance from her’—The Earl of Cork’s disappointment in his daughter’s rejection of the suitor proffered to her must have been great; and he thus manifests his displeasure.
- „ 143. ‘the queen of Bohemia’ = the Princess Elizabeth, only daughter of James I., married, 14th February, 161 $\frac{2}{3}$, Frederick V., Duke of Bavaria, Elector-Palatine of the Rhine, and King of Bohemia (see vol. ii., p. 353), by whom, with others, the gallant Prince Rupert. Ibid. ‘John Ken, the free Mason’—The word is evidently used here in its original and genuine sense, as denoting a master-mason. Among the old papers of the parish of Richmond, Surrey, is a “Contract made with the Masons for the Church Steeple,” dated in July, 1624. It is signed by the churchwardens, and by “Henry Walton, Free Mason for this work.” Cawdray, in his “Treasurie of Similies,” London, 1609, p.

342, makes this adaptation of the word:—"As the Free-mason heweth the hard stones . . . even so God, the Heavenly Free-mason, buildeth a Christian Church." I have no intention to branch off into the mysteries of the Free and Accepted Brotherhood; but it is very curious to note that the working masons of these isles have a language of their own, called in Ireland 'Berla-gair-na-saer' = the short dialect of the artificer. In the early part of the present century the Gaelic Society gave about twenty words of this mystic language in their "Transactions;" but the Kilkenny Archæological Society, in 1858-59, entered fully into the subject. One of its members, Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, an architect of Youghal, who had learned the masonic dialect, published a vocabulary of about two hundred and thirty words, with their English equivalents; and he affirmed that this secret language has been orally transmitted from the Middle Ages; that it is formed by an admixture of many tongues; and that his own workmen conversed in it for private purposes. In the same paper this gentleman discoursed very pleasantly about the "Mason's Marks" which appear on the jambs and arches of ecclesiastical edifices over Europe, as proving that a confraternity of skilled workmen, travelling in guilds from country to country, erected them all. These artificers had secret pass-words and signs, and were the founders of the Brotherhood of Free and Accepted Masons.

- Page 144. ‘Sondaie’—This was a singular day for holding a Court, and admitting a Privy Councillor. I suppose that Queen Henrietta’s influence had lessened the respect of her husband for the Lord’s Day. If actions are to decide character, Charles I.’s “religion” was merest state-craft.
- „ 147. ‘Sir Henry Marvyn’= Sir Henry Mervyn, of Petersfield, co. Southampton, Admiral of the Fleet, married Christina, daughter of George, Earl of Castlehaven. Sir Audley Mervyn, his son, M.P. for co. Tyrone, was Speaker of the Irish House of Commons.
- „ 148. ‘pacata Hibernie . . . the historie of Edw the 4th’—We have had the former volume mentioned before. The latter was the composition of Sir John Hayward. Ibid. ‘his Ma^{ty} . . . lending him those 5000^{li}’—Here was, perhaps, the secret object of the King’s admitting the Earl of Cork just before into the honour of being a Privy Councillor. Ibid. ‘a present and guifte of a thowsand peeces’—The Earl got off cheaply; but what shall one say of the royal meanness in accepting this present?
- „ 149. ‘delivered of a yong son’—This prince was baptized by the name of Henry, and was created Duke of Gloucester. He died unmarried, when twenty years of age, in 1660.
- „ 150. ‘Sir giles Momparsons’= Mompesson. Ibid. ‘his howse of Langford’= Little Langford, Wilts, five and a quarter miles (N.W.) from Wilton. Fill the hiatus in the text with “the Earl of Pembroke;” for here was his seat. The advowson is - in the patronage of the Herbert family. Ibid. 'Skott' = Scott. He married Mary, fourth daughter of Robert Hayman, of Minehead, by whom he had three sons, Edward, William, and Robert, and two daughters, Elizabeth and Marie; and he died at Youghal in 1649. Ibid. 'gray purdam'—A singular name for a horse. We had before 'grey coot.' A Lieut. 'Purdam,' recte Purdon, occurs at p. 159.

- Page 151. "Ballymarter" = Castlemartyr, midway between Cork and Youghal. Ibid. 'lampett' = Lampeter, Pembrokeshire.
- „ 152. "my son dongarvan . . . howskeeper at Stalbridge"—The Earl of Cork evidently has here made over his newly-acquired estate of Stalbridge upon his son and heir, Lord Dungarvan; and he is to be himself a "boarder," when he sojourns there. His allowances are of a most generous kind throughout.
- „ 153. 'herriots,' as often before. Ibid. 'ffynes of Alienacon' = fines for transferring a lease, or interest in a property, to a third party. Ibid. 'orphants'—Note spelling. Ibid. 'Berckyn' = Birckin, of p. 154, where he is said to be "of Corke," whereas here "of Bristoll;" but many of Cork and Youghal inhabitants were originally of Bristol.
- „ 154. 'having been long prisoner in the fleet'—It was no figure of speech that, in the bad old times, debtors were allowed to "rot" in prison. Only in our day was the Fleet abolished, mainly owing (it is believed) to the writings of Charles Dickens. Many

- a like kindly action with this, comes out in this Diary. See also next entry "Sent by Eddoe," &c.
- Page 155. 'Tutchett' = Touchett, the family name of the Earl of Castlehaven, so sorrowfully related to Sir John Davies, the Poet of "Nosce Teipsum."
- „ 156. 'ber marriadge porcon'—It is pleasant to follow the Earl of Cork's footsteps in his benevolence. At one time he is discharging an unhappy debtor from imprisonment; at another time (see p. 152, lines 1-3) sending strangers to their own country, or relieving widows; and here he is helping a maiden to marriage by foregoing a moiety of rent, and supplying the girl's brother, who had come on this business to him, with means of getting home. Ibid. 'Inchenecrynnaght = Inbecrunaght,' Irish, i.e., The holm, or river-meadow of wheat, a place near Youghal; but the title is obsolete, unless it be the same as Coolycrynnaght, Coolnacrunaght, The corner, or hill-back, of wheat; for which see volume ii., p. 399.
- „ 157. 'W^m Luellen thelder'—See mention of him in vol. i., pp. 13, 279, and many other places.
- „ 158. 'woods for my ironworcks,' i.e., for smelting iron-ore. Ibid. 'portreev' = Præpositus, or Provost, of the town. Ibid. 'sovereign' = burgomaster, or chief officer of the corporation, as before, p. 159.
- „ 159. 'sweete bags'—Which were filled probably with lavender, to be laid among the 'shurts.' Laundress = French Lavandiere, is not only Lavatrix (Latin), a washerwoman, but a perfumer, or one who sweetens her work with this fragrant herb.

Old Chaucer's word is Lavender = laundress.
Ibid. 'retribucon' = equivalent.

- Page 160. 'that Thowsand poundes in gowld . . . my free guifte' = 'free' in one sense, but really extorted in another, as before. Multiply this by the many, similarly put pressure on, and what a view we get of Charles I. ! Ibid. 'Temperance' = a singular female name. But similar personal names are extant. Prebendary Hayman has baptized a child by the name of "Blessing;" and many have heard of a father, favoured with girl-triplets, to whom he gave the names of "Faith," "Hope," and "Charity." Ibid. 'to bwy her pyns'—"Pins," writes Hone, in "Every-Day Book," January 1st, "were acceptable new year's gifts to the ladies, instead of the wooden skewers which they used till the end of the fifteenth century. Sometimes they received a composition in money; and hence allowances for their separate use are still denominated 'pin-money'"—just as gold and silver and other metal articles continue to be named "candle-sticks."
- „ 161. 'young carpes'—I have already noted that carp and tench were introduced into Ireland by the Earl of Cork; and it would appear that the formation of ornamental fish-ponds in the same country should be attributed to him. I find no mention of them before his day. Ibid. 'the free mazon'—See p. 143 of this volume.
- „ 162. 'Sir John Leek'—See vol. ii., p. 342. Ibid. 'dowalloe' = Duhallow, near Kanturk, in county of Cork = Duthaigh-Ealla, in Irish, i. e., the district of the Allo, as this portion of the Blackwater was called in Spenser's time.

- Page 163. 'powlmore' = Pillmore, the great poll or pill, being situated on a creek of the river Fanisk, in Cloyne-priest parish, near Youghal. Ibid. 'girdle' = "suspenders," or braces, have superseded this accommodation. Ibid. 'earnest' = pledge, as before.
- „ 164. 'parliament' = convened for the trial and condemnation of the Earl of Strafford. Ibid. 'caddows' = rugs. I note that the Earl of Cork occasionally uses Irish words. 'Cado' means a rough blanket.
- „ 165. 'restreigned to the marshall' = committed to the Marshal's custody. Ibid. "Kilnokane's" = Kilcockan, a parish in the county of Waterford, 6 miles from Tallow.
- „ 166. 'Killoternay' = Kilwaternoy, a parish in the county of Waterford, 2 miles from Tallow. Ibid. 'quarteridge' = quarterly payment.
- „ 167. 'Sir Edward Lyttleton' = Sir Edmund Lyttleton, a lineal descendant of the ever-famous judge, the author of "Treatise of Tenures," "the most perfect and absolute work," observed his editor, Lord Coke, in his Commentary, "that ever was wrote in any human science." Sir Edmund Lyttleton, Solicitor-General in 1634, was five years afterwards made Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the next year constituted Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, when he was also elevated to the peerage, 18th February, 1640-41, as Baron Lyttleton, of Mounslow, co. Salop. He died in 1645, and his honours then became extinct. Ibid. 'the Lo. ffyncher' = Sir John Finch, Speaker of the House of Commons in 1627, Justice of the Common Pleas in 1636, and Chief Justice afterwards. In 1639 he was appointed Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; and 7th April, 1640, he was advanced to the peerage, in the dignity of Baron Finch, of Fordwich, co. Kent. He died in 1660, when his honours expired. Ibid. 'sepert particio'—The Earl of Cork was familiar with legal phraseology, as I have already shown. By a personal ("sepert") deed, in the partitioning of his estates among his sons, he had bequeathed to Lord Broghill lands and hereditaments in the counties of Cork, Limerick, and Kerry. But he has now revoked that deed, that he might acquire power to bring his son and heir, Lord Dungarvan, into the settlement on Lord Broghill of these properties. The "sepert particio," or sole deed, has been set aside, that a joint deed might be executed in its room.

Page 168. 'the Lo. dawbignes' = the Lord Dunbar. The Lady Margaret Howard was daughter of Theophilus, second Earl of Suffolk, and of his wife the Lady Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of George, Earl of Dunbar.

„ 169. 'her firste son . . . xtend . . . Richard'—He succeeded as third Viscount Ranelagh, and was created Earl of Ranelagh, 11th December, 1674; but he died without male issue in 1711, when the earldom expired. The viscounty and barony remained dormant for nearly half a century, until claimed by and allowed to Charles Jones, the deceased Earl's cousin—from whom comes the present Viscount Ranelagh.

- Page 170. ‘Thearle of Strafford’—The Earl of Cork’s jottings about this nobleman’s trial and condemnation are of historical value. In “State Trials,” vol. i., pp. 335, 356, &c., is given at length the fourth article of Strafford’s impeachment, which sets forth his treatment of the Earl of Cork respecting the College of Youghal.
- „ 171. ‘Sir Edward povey, knight’—I find grants of various advowsons in the county of Roscommon to this gentleman in Patent Rolls, 8 Charles I., part i., membrane 50 [1631-32]; and in Close Rolls, 7 & 8 Charles I., membrane 38. His grandson, Sir John Povey, was Lord Chief Justice of the King’s Bench, Ireland, by patent, 11th April, 1673. He died in 1679, and was buried in St. Michan’s Church, Dublin, 28th March. Ibid. ‘coronell’ = colonel [colonel, French; colonello, Italian]. But “coronel” is so largely used by old writers, that we must accept it as genuine, particularly as English pronunciation sanctions it. In Spanish, the word is coronel. DUCANGE (“Glossarium ad Scriptores,” 1733) gives both “colonellus” and “coronellus.”
- „ 172. ‘M’ deodati deodate’—Let this name be kept in remembrance as that of one who acted as Robert Boyle’s banker at Geneva. It is unnecessary to claim even a higher record in John Diodati, the Italian translator of the Bible. Nor must we forget that the villa 'Diodati' had for guests earlier Milton, and later Byron and Shelley.

Page 173. 'my new sedan'—Pulleyn, in his "Etymological Compendium," third edition, p. 260, states:—"It was in 1634 that Sir Saunders Duncombe first introduced Sedan chairs." He adds that Sir Saunders had seen them at Sedan, on the Meuse in France, where they were invented. In the "Stafford Letters," vol. i., p. 336, ed. 1634, we read:—"Here is also another project for carrying people up and down in close chairs, for the safe doing whereof Sir Saunders Duncombe, a traveller, now a pensioner, hath obtained a patent from the king, and hath forty or fifty ready for use." Haydon, "Dictionary of Dates," p. 538, informs us that a Sedan Chair was used in the reign of James I., by the Duke of Buckingham, to the great indignation of the people, who exclaimed, "that he was employing his fellow-creatures to do the service of beasts." Although Sedan (that place of ill-omen to France) is given as the birthplace of these useful vehicular helps, it is obvious that to the East we must really look for their invention, as well as for Jonas Hanway's shading umbrella. Many a quaint story and anecdote might be told of the earlier and later use of the "sedan chair."

„ 174. 'ffor disbanding the new irish armye' = the forces which had been raised in Ireland by Strafford for the service of Scotland. The Scots looked upon this army as a hateful enrolment of Romanists, intended to overthrow the Covenant. The English dreaded it as a force which might be employed by the King against their own liberties. There was then a general clamour to have it disbanded; but the measure was beset with difficulties, for the soldiers' pay had been long in arrear, and it seemed perilous to turn loose eight thousand men, bred to arms, while discontented and unprovided for. By enforced loans, such as here are described by the Earl of Cork, there was obtained money sufficient to satisfy the soldiery for a season. The whole Irish force was quietly dissolved, and their arms and munitions were deposited in the arsenal at Dublin. See pp. 175, 176.

Page 175. 'a Buck . . . towards his Readers ffest in the Inner Temple'—Dugdale gives an account of the steps by which an aspirant to the legal profession mounted upward. He is admitted as "student," then "utter barrister," then "cupboard man," then "bencher," and finally "reader;" but it is inexpedient to enter into these mysteries. His "readings," or prelections, in Dugdale's time, were invested with considerable ceremony; were honoured by the presence of such judges and serjeants as were brought up in the house; and were followed by magnificent entertainments, provided at the Reader's charges. His expenses would often exceed £300 per week. By an order of the Bench made in the reign of Philip and Mary, every summer Reader was enjoined to spend fifteen bucks in the Hall during his time of reading; some, given to hospitality, pro- vided threescore bucks, besides red deer ; others, in the spirit of emulation, sent in fourscore, and others one hundred. The Earl of Cork's gift to his "learned Councell towards his Readers ffeast" could not but be acceptable. Ibid. 'the great belloved' = "valde dilecta," most beloved? Ibid. 'Sir Henry Vane = a quick name still.

- Page 176. 'the Earle of Strafford atteinted bebedded'—How pregnant is this brief record of human instability! "But xj voices of all the Lords declaring not content," in sending to the scaffold one, of whom we read, in p. 129, "He had the queen's coach with sixe horses to carry him owt of the cytty," i.e., on his leaving to assume the viceroyalty of Ireland.
- „ 177. 'ffrances, Earle of Bedford'—He had been the second Lord Russell, of Thornhaugh, and had succeeded, 3rd May, 1627, in the family honours, his cousin Edward, third Earl of Bedford. His eldest son William was created, 11th May, 1694, Marquess of Tavistock and Duke of Bedford. Ibid. 'Armi-ger'—This is a baptismal name in our own day with the Sealy family, of co. Cork.
- „ 178. 'lent gratis' = without requiring interest on the loan, ut freq.
- „ 179. 'yonge' = evidently "George." See p. 181. Ibid. 'allowance of my two yongest sons, ffrances and Robert' = £500 per annum for their maintenance at Geneva. This would be about £3,000 a year of our currency.
- „ 180. 'my cozen croon, vintener in cheapside'—In the "Visitation of London," 1633-35, printed by the Harleian Society, the pedigree of Croone is given. See vol. i., p. 205. John Croone, of Broxwood, Herefordshire, married Margaret, daughter of James Boyle, of Hereford, and had issue Henry Croone, of London, who was the vintner. I have noted repeatedly that the Earl of Cork's relations were numerous, and that he is never ashamed to set forth their positions in life. But he lived in a time when the younger sons of the English gentry were customarily brought up to trade; when the freest intercourse subsisted between the aristocrat and the shopkeeper; and intermarriages in what we now regard as different grades of society were of constant occurrence. There are indications in our day of a return to this healthy usage; and the sooner "caste" is broken in our midst, the better for the nation. Ibid. 'Old Mr Shelberry' = solicitor to Sir Walter Raleigh. Let us note his name, while we grieve that he was "in wants." Ibid. 'drowned coming thorough Londonbridge'—The narrow arches and the huge starlings of Old London Bridge rendered passage by water perilous. Boatmen had to "shoot the rapids;" and contemporaneous chronicles tell of lives lost continually in the hazardous experiment.

Page 181. 'the colledg howse of Yoghall'—Man proposes and God disposes. So far as we can see into Lord Cork's plans at this time, they were as follows:—He would remain in England himself, and his son Dungarvan is to make this old mansion his residence.

Five hundred pounds are given Lady Dungarvan to furnish it; and she and her husband "ar to keep house of themselves." Changed was everything suddenly. In three months' time the Earl of Cork leaves England for ever. The College becomes his own abiding-place for two years of public trouble and personal decay, and within its walls he closes his eventful history! Ibid. 'if the Kinge hold his forney into Skotlande'—The Earl of Cork, with whom loyalty was a passion, shrewdly, nevertheless, divined Charles's instability and incapacity. Hence his "wager."

Page 182. 'Annarye in devonshier'—Sir James St. Leger (from whom descend the Lords Doneraile) married, circa 1515, Anne, eldest daughter and co-heir of Thomas, seventh Earl of Ormonde, and received with her thirty-six manors in England, among which was this estate of Annery. His great-granddaughter Eulalie was married to Tristram Arscott, who purchased Annery of his father-in-law, Sir John St. Leger. With other children of this marriage was John Arscott (called "Captain" in p. 183), of whom the Earl of Cork purchased the property. The price was apparently small; but Annery had been heavily mortgaged, as will be seen presently. Ibid. "sent in cartes and tendered to Mr fason 3300^{li}"—In other places I have remarked the same "cartage"; and it is evident that the Earl of Cork's payments were made customarily in specie. See p. 190, first line, "one C^{li} iii golde". Ibid. 'Marstone Bigod in Somersetshier = Marston, near Frome. It is the seat of the present Earl of Cork.

Page 183. 'Clenlish' = Clengish, co. Limerick, where was seated a branch of the Geraldine family, now represented by the Baronetical FitzGerald of Castle Ishen (see p. 1 of this volume and note). This "Edmund fitz Thomas Gerald", finding in 1643 that his castle of Clengish must fall into the hands of the rebels, burnt it to the ground. He was, in reward, created a baronet of Ireland, 8 February, 164 $\frac{4}{5}$. On the restoration of peace, he settled himself at Castle Ishen, near Charleville, co. Cork, where the tenth baronet now resides. Ibid. 'costern' (?) = custard-bowl, or some kind of épergne. I cannot find the word in any dictionary, and am constrained to make this conjecture. See it again, p. 187. Ibid. 'borslytter'—See former note (in vol. iv., s. v.). Ibid. 'the nags head in cheapside'.—This hostelry of "my cozen croon" is a household word in polemics. In 1604, about forty years after Archbishop Parker's consecration to the See of Canterbury, a tale began to be told that this rite had been only a travesty at the Nag's Head, Cheapside, and that the chain of English episcopal succession was in consequence broken. But the official register at Lambeth proves that Archbishop Parker's consecration took place at Lambeth; and Dr. Lingard, the R. C. historian, who examined this register, accepted its authenticity. The controversy is now regarded as closed.

184. 'Marston Bigod'—See p. 182.

- Page 185. 'boxe of wrytings . . . for my yongest son Robert Boyle' = Deeds, relative to the estates, that were to be his portion.
- „ 186. Halberton' = a parish near Tiverton. Ibid. 'Saltcomberin' = Saltcombe, p. 189.
- „ 188. 'Sir Walter Raleighes tobacoe' = Tobacco as introduced into England and Ireland by Raleigh. Ibid. 'in cond essex' = "in comitatu Essex."
- „ 189. 'I obteyned his Ma^{ty}s graceows pardon'—How? By a douceur of £200. As we go deeper into the story of these reigns, we find more and more revealed to us that "money" could do everything at the Court. Here is a man, "indicted and outlawed for wilfull murther", forgiven and restored for the foregoing sum, along with some "ffees and chardges"! The £200 were, I suppose, for the King, and the £48 5s. for his officials. How long will it take to dissipate the pseudo-aureole round the pathetic face (as painted) of Charles I.? Ibid. 'xtned by the name of Richarde'—As I have noted previously, the name was given by the sponsors, not by the parents. Ibid. 'my selfe the poor Earle of Corke'—Here is breathed a sigh, like as of weariness in his life's journey; and the first I find in this Diary. Be it remembered that the Earl was now closing his seventy-fifth year, and that he had accomplished more in that period than dozens of ordinary mortals in their combined existences. Perhaps it was only an expression of humility. Ibid. 'in con^d devon'—"In comitatu Devon."

- Page 190. 'to my Robins yong Mrs'—This is an interesting entry, relative to Robert Boyle. Ibid. 'my Lo. Edward Howards daughter' (she was Anne, only daughter of Edward, Lord Howard, of Escrick, Yorkshire) is the wife designed for him by his father; and "a smale golde Ring with a dya-mond" is bestowed on the young lady by way of betrothal. "Robin" was now in his fifteenth year, and had probably never beheld the girl's face. He died a bachelor, and she wedded Charles, Earl of Carlisle.
- „ 192. 'two indented deeds . . . my Lord Edward Howard for Robert'—These were "entrusted" to him, as father of the fiancée. Ibid. 'I sent . . . my sedan and a new iron cheste'—namely, by ship to Ireland, whither the Earl of Cork is now about to proceed. The "sedan" seems to indicate growing infirmities. His making up his deeds, perfecting them, sealing them in boxes, and depositing them with trustworthy custodians, were the wise acts of a man advanced in life, and now "setting his house in order."
- „ 194. 'thearle of Warwick . . . my daughter Marie'—We have the preliminaries of this alliance, interesting to all acquainted with the autobiography of the Countess of Warwick. A marriage portion of £7,000, equal to five times as much of our currency, proves the Earl's forgiveness of "un-ruly" Marie.
- „ 195. 'statute staple' = a bond, or record, acknowledged before the Mayor and one of the constables of the - Staple; by virtue of which bond the creditor may immediately have the execution upon the debtor's body, land, and goods. [BAILEY.]

- Page 196. 'Stalbridge'—The manor thus conveyed to Robert Boyle, became, in 1644, on his return from his foreign travels, his place of residence. In his autobiographical memoir he constantly mentions Stalbridge, and describes his philosophical investigations pursued in its retirement.
- „ 197. 'M^s washington'—Too noticeable a name to be overlooked. Ibid. 'a golden token to my wife'—Perhaps a slip of the pen for "his" wife = Lady Stafford. It is possible the Earl meant that this 'golden token' had once belonged to his 'wife.' Elsewhere we find him distributing her jewels, &c.
- „ 198. 'to goe for Irelande'—This was the Earl of Cork's adieu to the land of his birth; and we follow his steps with interest. He leaves Stalbridge, October 8th [1641], for Frome, a distance of about thirty miles, stopping at Marston Biggot, three miles from the latter place, to hold a Court leet and receive attornment = acknowledgment of his being their landlord, of all the tenants. Next day, he reaches, vid Wells, Glastonbury, about twenty miles of journey; October 10th, he is at Bridgwater, fifteen miles further; and on the 11th he arrives at his port of embarkation, Minehead, twenty-six miles from Bridgwater. At Minehead, in the house of Isaac Thornbury, the receiver of customs, he remains for four days, waiting, no doubt, for a favourable wind. He takes ship in

The Amity, of which a certain Jones is owner and master. It is of "burthen 60 Tonnes," just of the same size as are the little coasters that dart to and fro in the present day. The Earl, with his company, lands "at Yoghall on Sunday morning, being the xvijth October." The hour of arrival is early; and, like a Christian man, "I went," he adds, "to morning praier to give God thancks for our safe and speedy passadge." Here he abides until the Tuesday following, and October 19th he is once more in his old castle of Lismore.

Page 199. 'given one capⁿ Kelly' . . . 'given old Morgan poulden' . . . 'given unto two english gent'—The good Earl's bounties are multiplying. He is not weary in well-doing. Leaving Minehead he sent £20 to free a clergyman out of prison. He now aids a Connaught gentleman, "that was in wants;" an old man, "to carry him to Sir Charles Coott;" two fellow-countrymen, "who were put ashore at Beerhaven." Ibid, 'the waies being soe dangerows'—On the 23rd of October, 1641, the great Irish rebellion broke out. The first blow was struck by Sir Phelim O'Neill, in the county of Tyrone. He had been hospitably entertained by Lord Caulfield at the castle of Charlemont; but, while the feast was proceeding, the noble host and his family were seized and bound; the warders were made prisoners, and the castle was plundered. Dungannon was surprised on the same night, and the flourishing settlements of Ulster were instantaneously enwrapt in war and bloodshed. An indiscriminate massacre of the Protestants everywhere took place. The spirit of insurrection soon spread; and, ere long, the chief portion of the island was involved in the horrors of an exterminating Civil War. I must, however, confine my attention to the district illustrated in these pages. By a providential circumstance for Youghal, its proprietor, the Earl of Cork, unknowing what was occurring, had turned his steps thitherward. He had been for some time in London, in attendance on parliament during Strafford's trial, and was now released, and permitted to revisit Ireland. Accompanied by his son, Lord Broghill, newly married to the Lady Margaret Howard, daughter of the Earl of Suffolk, he had landed at Youghal, as we have seen, on Sunday, October 17th, and on the 19th he had proceeded to Lismore, where he intended to sojourn. The news of the rising of the north reached Munster on the 25th, when the Earl of Cork, Lord and Lady Broghill, and other persons of distinction, were dining with the Earl of Barrymore; and a weary messenger, who had made extraordinary exertions, brought them terrible tidings from Dublin. In the despatches from the Lords Justices, the Earl of Cork was directed to employ his utmost prudence and skill to save Munster from the calamities that were desolating the north. He straightway raised among his English tenantry, who were bound by their leases to serve in person as militia, or to find substitutes, five hundred cavalry, which he placed under command of his sons Broghill and Kinalmeaky, and four hundred foot, to garrison his towns and castles, the charges for the whole array being provided out of his private resources for many months. The following recently published work will be found to shed much new light on this memorable period, whilst Miss Hickson's own commentaries are full of thought and insight, and luminously put—“Ireland in the Seventeenth Century; or, The Irish Massacres of 1641-2, their Causes and Results. Illustrated by Extracts from the unpublished State Papers, the unpublished MSS. in the Bodleian Library, Lambeth Library, and the Library of the Royal Dublin Society, relating to the Plantations of 1610-39; a selection from the unpublished Depositions relating to the Massacres, with facsimiles; and the Reports of the Trials in the High Court of Justice in 1652-4, from the unpublished MSS. in Trinity College, Dublin. By Mary Hickson, with a Preface by J. A. Froude, M.A. 2 vols. 8vo. 1884. (Longmans.)

defence and provision of Castle Lyons = The Earl of Barrymore's residence. The rebellion had now broken out in Munster. Ibid. 'lasard'—I do not understand this word: query, 'carbines' as in page 205. Ibid. 'snaphawnces' = "a firelock, a gun that strikes fire without a match" [BAILEY]. The word is German, Schnaphahn; and we have here the date of the flint-and-steel musket's introduction. Ibid. 'Adam waring caste 2 other [pieces of ordnance] for me'—With other uses of his iron, the Earl of Cork had cast cannons of different calibre at his furnaces; and had distributed them among his castles and the towns on his Irish estates. Five of these pieces remained in the blockhouse of Youghal, until it was dismantled A.D. 1811. They were then fixed on the pier head to serve as mooring-posts for shipping; and they were transferred, in 1853, to the town walls that skirt the burial-ground of St. Mary's Church, where they may be seen looking out through embrasures, as in the days of old. Lord Broghill, writing to his father from Lismore, 11 January, 164½, mentions these guns:—"I tried one of the ordnances made at the forge, and it held with two pound charge, so that I will plant it upon the terras over the river." See of Adam Waring, vol. ii., p. 427.

Page 202. 'Aquavite' = whisky. Ibid. 'gascoigne wyne' = of Gascony, as before. Ibid. 'the Lo. president of Mounster' = Sir William St. Leger. Ibid. 'ffive hundreth powns ster . . . for his ma^{ty} service'—The royal exchequer was run dry. Ibid. 'she staid at (12) yoghall for a passadge" &c.—I may in this place remark that the Earl of Cork's entries here and henceforth become confusing; nor is it to be wondered at, if we bear in mind the public anxieties that must have weighed him down. Sometimes he is obliged to turn back in his Diary, to use pages that he had unintentionally skipped; and sometimes, as in entries like the present, where he has chronicled an event, he makes addenda, days or weeks after, so as to complete the record. Lady Kynalmeaky left Lismore, 21 December, 1641, to go viâ Youghal to England; and, on her leaving, the Earl of Cork notes the circumstance in his journal ["this daie"]; but in the same page he afterwards mentions what occurred on the 11th and 12th of January following. While, moreover, the months follow each other consecutively, the dates of the days are constantly transposed, e.g., next after what happened on the 21st, come memoranda applying to December 16th and 17th.

Page 203. 'the now Bicshop of Waterford and Lismoor' = Archibald Adair, D.D., a Scot, Dean of Raphoe, and formerly Bishop of Killala. He was appointed by patent 13th July, 1641, but was forced soon after his consecration to flee into England, where he died at Bristol, in 1647. Ibid. 'Mr Edmond peirie' = Edward Perry, a merchant of Youghal, of which corporation he was bailiff A.D. 1664, and mayor in 1674. He was buried at St. Mary's, Youghal, 18th Nov., 1696. His "tokens," along with all struck by other tradesmen of Youghal, were described and illustrated with facsimile engravings by Prebendary Hayman in the "Journal of the Kilkenny and South-East of Ireland Archæological Society," in 1859.

Page 204. 'barrels of gunpowder . . . matche . . . lead.' These importations from Minehead sufficiently tell of the troublous times. Ibid. 'my 2 yongest sons' = Francis and Robert, now at Geneva. Whate'er betides, their father never forgets their provision. Ibid. '29. I departed from Lismoor, and came that night . . . to yoghall'—This is a very important entry in the Diary, and yet there is a tangle that we cannot unravel. The "29" [January, 164 $\frac{1}{2}$] is evidently an error; for the Earl of Cork proceeds to say that he put up "at Sir Peercie Smythes at the chantrie 24th Januarie, 1641." It will not solve the difficulty if we read January 9th or 19th; because, in Morrice's "Life of the Earl of Orrery," we find (with several other letters of the Earl of Cork) his lordship writing to Lord Goring from "Yoghall, this twelfth day about midnight, after a heavy and sorrowful Christmas, 1641." "Twelfth day" would be January 6th. According to the Diary, he was then at Lismore.

„ 205. 'bond of 2000^{li} . . . to Sir Robert Tynt'—The Earl of Cork's devoted loyalty is here further illustrated. Ibid. 'Ballycrynnan' = Ballycrenan. This castle is in fine preservation. Within its walls, Lady Tynte, née Elizabeth Boyle, and once Edmund Spenser's wife, closed her mortal existence, and was buried in the neighbouring church of Kilcredun. Ibid. 'lead taken from my Tarris of the Colledge.' 'Tarris' = terraced roof; or did the Earl of Cork intend "towers"? At this time he built five circular turrets at the angles of the College park, and raised platforms of earth on which he placed ordnance to command the town and harbour. "Flankers," as they were called, were quite in vogue at this time, as the mode of fortification; and the English settlers erected their defenced houses after this fashion. See "Notes on Bawns" in the "Ulster Journal of Archæology," vol. vi., pp. 125-155. The Earl of Cork's five flankers are in excellent preservation. Ibid. 'such hamers' = snaphawnces, of p. 201.

Page 206. 'Arnolde Wintel' = Arnold Winkle. A tombstone erected by him in memory of his son Thomas, who died 11 November, 1637, is in good preservation in St. Mary's Churchyard. "Arnold Winkle's holdings" in the Base or lower town, are often mentioned in Youghal Corporate leases.

„ 207. 'the Carrick' = Carrick-on-Suir, where are the remains of a magnificent castle belonging to the Ormonde family. Ibid. 'my own weak companies' = his tenantry as before. Ibid. 'the pynck' [pinque, French], "a kind of heavy narrow-sterned ship." [JOHNSON.] 'Camphier', 'Sroncally', 'Ballynatra', &c.—These are all localities in the neighbourhood of Youghal. Ibid. 'Court of guard' = mainguard, or chief military post in a town. Prisoners, for safety, were commonly kept there.

Not a vestige of this religious house now remains; yet it must have been in fair preservation and its domestic portions habitable in the Earl of Cork's day.
- „ 210. Crockford was from Somersetshire; and he was sending with his wife his money out of the country.

of ninety-seven. Sir James Ware was possessed of a manuscript compiled by this prelate, entitled "The Present State of the Bishopric of Ossory, anno 1619" (MS. Clarendon, 75). Ibid. 'Merryann' = Merrion, near Dublin, as before.

- „ 213. The Diary, hitherto kept with such regularity, now exhibits a hiatus of four months (May to August, 1642, both inclusive). We learn from other sources how a considerable portion of this time was filled by the Earl of Cork. As custos rotulorum of the counties of Cork and Waterford, and in obedience to the commands of the Lords Justices of Ireland, he held during the months of July and August Sessions, Courts in the Guildhall of Youghal for the indictment of the Munster rebels, and there he entered upon inquiries affecting the lives and properties of many chief nobles, gentry, as well as humbler classes of the province. Among "Miscellaneous MSS.," $\frac{24}{Q_5}$, in the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin, is "no. 58. A noate or scedule of the names of such persons as are indicted of Treason at the geñall Sessions of the peace held at Youghall, in the County of Corcke, the second day of August, Anno Dni. 1642, being founde to be in actuall Rebellion."
- „ 214. 'the Lord viscount Kynalmeaky was . . . killed'—

This was Lewis Boyle, born in 1619, and married in 1639 to Lady Elizabeth Fielding, daughter of the Earl of Denbigh. He left no issue. King Charles II. created, in 1660, Lady Kynalmeaky Countess of Guilford for her life. Ibid. 'cornoll = colonel, as before. Ibid. 'drom anry' = Dromana. Ibid. 'my chapple in yoghall' = the south transept of St. Mary's Church.

Page 215. 'the Iland' = Capel Island, an uninhabited island near the mouth of the harbour of Youghal, distant about five miles from the mainland. Ibid. 'Thearle of Barrymore . . . deceased this morning' [29 September, 1642]. His was a noble spirit; and his unripe decease was a terrible blow to English interests in Munster. His burial must have been impressive. The Earl's words are graphic, "his Lo^p being interred with the rights of a soldier the sonday next following in my chapple at yoghall, the Lo. of Inchequyn with veary many other being present."

„ 216. 'M^{rs} An Howard, daughter to the Lorde Edw: Howarde' = The bride he designed for his son Robert, as before. Ibid. 'the Indictments' = of those who had been arraigned for high treason at the Sessions in August and September held in Youghal Guildhall.

Page 217. 'sakee' = the Sacre threw a ball of 5 lbs.; the Minion of 4½ lbs. See the calibre of artillery set forth in vol. i., pp. 290, 291. Ibid. 'purdam' = purdon. Ibid. 'stoarhouse in yoghall'—See vol. ii., p. 373.

„ 218. 'a new yeares guifte for my 4 grandchildren'—We

- find the good old Earl, in the midst of trouble, remembering lovingly his kith and kin.
- Page 219. ‘being bothe now sick and in wantes’—To be noted as evidencing continuous sympathy with human suffering by the “Great Earl.”
- „ 220. ‘M, Atkins, of powlmore, died’—His tombstone is in the ruined church of Cloynepriest, near Youghal; but the date of his decease is given as 14 February, 1642. Ibid. ‘hanged at Yoghall’—At the northern end of the town of Youghal, is a rising ground called Gibbet Hill in Corporate leases of the seventeenth century. The Union workhouse now occupies the site of this old place of execution.
- „ 221. ‘to be kept and drest carefully for my son Robert, when god shall send him home from his fforreign travailes’—His “Benjamin” is evermore in his thoughts.
- „ 222. ‘Nichas pyne, of Mogely’—For particulars about this family, see vol. i., pp. 289, 290.
- „ 224. ‘Lymerrick’—When the insurrectionary spirit reached the county of Limerick, the insurgent army under Lord Ikerrin, Lord Muskerry, and General Barry marched on Limerick city, the gates of which were thrown open by the inhabitants. The garrison of 200 men shut themselves up in the castle; but, after an obstinate defence, they were obliged to surrender. Sir Percy Smyth’s effort to bring back the citizens to their allegiance was a total failure. Ibid. ‘my laste will and testament’—Vide full Life as before.
- „ 225. ‘getting neither moneis nor victuals owt of England’

—Things are growing darker and darker ; and our only wonder is how the loyalists were able to keep their ground, under the circumstances.

- Page 227. ‘a partie of horse . . . entred the town of Lismoor’—This surprise of the town is sad, especially as it occurred “ffor want of good watch.” The Earl of Cork’s precautions, of which we had an account in pages 218 and 219, saved the castle ; but the insurgents came so far as “even to the owt gate.”
- „ 228. ‘the sowe’—A mediæval instrument of war, used for covering men while breaching walls. It was a kind of house on wheels, double planked with oak and covered with hides ; the ridge of the roof was very sharp, that missiles might glance off. The “sow” was revived in the wars of 1641-43, and is described by the Irish historians. See WRIGHT’s “Ireland,” vol. i., pp. 686, 687.
- „ 229. ‘Siege of Cappoquin’—Historical events will be reserved for notice in the Earl of Cork’s Life, as before.
- „ 230. We have but one entry in the month of July, or rather there is a summary of proceedings during the month in one paragraph. We reserve comments as above on what is historical.
- „ 231-32. Recipes for different ailments are significant of failing health. The End is now approaching.
- „ 232-233. The closing entries are settlements of his worldly indebtedness. The Earl of Cork “owes no man anything.”

GENERAL INDEX TO NOTES AND ILLUSTRATIONS TO THE WHOLE WORK (FIRST SERIES).

NASMUCH as in these Notes and Illustrations nothing noticeable in these "Lismore Papers" has been overpassed (save inadvertently), a full Index to them, such as follows this, is practically a good working index for the entire "Diary." No doubt there are many obscure Irish names—persons and places—inevitably unannotated, and so unrecorded in the present Index. The game had not been worth the candle to have superfluously laboured to trace, verify, and illustrate these. But (Deo volente) it is my intention (agreeably to promise in vol. i. p. 273-4), to give as complete a list as possible of all occurring names, with such supplementary information as may be obtained in the interval, at the close of the Second Series, i.e., an exhaustive Index for both Series. Meantime no Reader (it is believed) will consult the present one without benefit; for in these Notes and Illustrations are brought together no little out-of-the-way lore from many sources—all in as condensed form as might be. The first syllable is the rule of sequence; but as close alphabetical order as was possible has been aimed at. See further in Introduction to vols. i. and ii. (vol. i. pp. xxvi-vii) and the same to vols. iii., iv., and v. (pp. v, vii), on Prebendary Hayman's inestimable service in these Notes and Illustrations.—A. B. G.
